KIDNAPING SERIES CHARGED TO PAIR SEIZED NEAR CITY

Abduction of Atlantan, Three in Birmingham, Believed Work of Two Youths Held by Police.

ARRESTS ARE MADE WITHOUT STRUGGLE

Duo Also Accused of Auto Thefts Throughout Southern States.

The brief but spectacular career of two youthful kidnap-robbers, whose technique did not vary in commission of a series of crimes from New Orleans to Atlanta, was abruptly halted early this morning in capture on the Columbus highway between Fairburn and Union City.

The objects of a wide hunt by city, county and state authorities following the "ride-rob" of an Atlantan, on the heels of two similar crimes in Birmingham and thefts of automobiles in New Orleans and Mobile, were arrested without resistance by Fulton county patrolmen after the Atlantan's car was wrecked on the highway.

The prisoners gave their names as Alvin Lockart, 17, and Alfred Haskell, 18, both of Birmingham. The Atlanta phase opened yesterday morning with discovery in a ditch on Chattahoochee avenue, near Bolton, of an automobile taken from a kidnaped Birmingham woman Wednesday night, and reached a higher tempo last night with the seizure of an Atlanta businessman as he emerged from visiting a friend at the Piedmont hospital, 551 Capitol avenue.

Headed south on the Macon highway, the robbers were sought from descriptions sent out by short-wave radio by Fulton county police armed with Associated Press dispatches telling of their exploits in New Orleans, Mobile and Birmingham as well as here.

The Atlanta victim was K. L. Jones Jr., 24, of Jett road, who reported to Fulton county police by telephone from the home of Dr. Charles R. Adams, Fulton county commissioner, that he had walked 10 miles to the Adams home after being robbed of his automobile, trousers and $16 in cash.

The ditched car was identified by insurance adjusters as the property of Miss Lu Mae Cross, 35, Birmingham local worker, who was abducted, robbed and then forced from the car 12 miles outside that city.

Birmingham police also charged the bandits with kidnaping and robbing Claude Hawkins and a girl companion, a short time before abducting Miss Cross.

Miss Cross told Birmingham police she learned from conversation between the bandits that they stole an automobile in New Orleans, drove to Mobile, stole another car and then drove to Birmingham.

Jones told Fulton county police the men entered his car at about 8 o'clock last night as he was about to drive from the hospital. The bandits commanded him to drive south, and they proceeded out the Macon highway. About 10 miles from Atlanta, the bandits made him stop at a filling station and buy gasoline. A fight ensued, but persons at the station were unaware of it.

A few miles further down the highway, the bandits took Jones' money and trousers and, forcing him from the vehicle, drove off.

Federal Judge Upholds Right to Enter Jersey City Sans Interference.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 27.—(AP) Federal court upheld today the CIO's "right" to go into Jersey City safe from the "deportations" it charged were resorted to by police to frustrate organizational activities.

The ruling by Judge William Clark was filed in an injunction suit started by the CIO and allied organizations last January—a day after Mayor Frank Hague declared the CIO "shall never come into this city as long as I am mayor."

Judge Clark also forbade any interference with the "right" to distribute leaflets on the street, carry placards and to speak in public parks. The decision made no mention of the plaintiffs' plea to hold meetings and make speeches on the street.

Although upholding the plaintiffs' right to speak in public parks, the court recommended a "modified form of public censorship" Judge Clark said such censorship "must have as a condition precedent some proof that the particular persons applying for permits had on no previous occasions addressed similar audiences with resulting disturbances."

Not until then, the decision said, were city authorities justified in demanding either a copy of the proposed speech or binding the speaker to keep the peace.

No Estrangement, Wrestler-Husband Maintains; She'll Sail November 2.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—(UP) Bob Gregory, wrestler-husband of Princess Baba, daughter of the white Rajah of Sarawak, tonight met Hollywood rumors that they were separating with the rejoinder that "we're more in love than ever."

Gregory said the report of an estrangement evidently started from the fact that the Princess is leaving Sunday for London, leaving him in Hollywood. He said she will visit her two sisters, whom she has not seen in a year, and probably would return to Hollywood within a month or six weeks.

Gregory said his wrestling contracts prevent him from accompanying her.

Plans of the wrestler and his wife for a screen career are still indefinite. Gregory said the mat-

Sad-Eyed Torch Singer Is Granted Divorce From Billy Rose.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—(UP) Fanny Brice, Broadway's "Lady Pagliacci" who won her stage spurs singing the torchiest of all torch songs—"My Man"—today for the third time in her life lost her man in a divorce court when she was granted a divorce from Billy Rose, pint-sized showman and impresario.

The charge was desertion, but for more than a year the show world has known the real reason was beautiful Eleanor Holm, former Olympic champion swimmer, to whom Rose has already—announced his engagement.

Under California law, however, it will be a year before the interlocutory decree becomes final, and any marrying Rose does will have to be postponed until then.

The sad-eyed girl who turned tragedy into comedy on the stage—and had the roles played backwards for her in real life—rang the curtain down on her third version of her torch song ("Whatever my man is, I am his—forever!") in a brief session in Superior Judge Thurmond Clark's court.

"I tried to make a happy home with him, but he did not respond to my efforts," she said.

Her only witness was Mrs. Ben Hecht, wife of the novelist, who corroborated Miss Brice's charge of desertion.

CHINA IS REPORTED READY TO DECLARE WAR ON NIPPONESE

Formal Pronouncement of Hostilities Would Result in Neutrality Act of U. S. Aiding Defenders.

SOVIET ASSISTANCE ANOTHER FACTOR

Invaders Shoot Down Helpless Chinese Near U. S. Patrol in Hankow.

Reports that China would formally declare war against Japan were increasingly evident in Hong-kong yesterday. Such a declaration, the reports said, would be followed quickly by the closest co-operation between Russia and China. Also, in such an event, the neutrality act of the United States would probably go into effect immediately, cutting off all American war supplies now purchased by Japan. China would be little affected—her major seaports being either captured or blockaded.

Lending a measure of authenticity to these reports were the demands of prominent, leftist-inclined Chinese, disturbed at possibility of peace with Japan, that Chinese resistance and Chinese co-operation with Soviet Russia be continued.

At the same time, Toshio Shiratori, Japanese diplomat, was revealing to DNB, official German news agency in Tokyo, Nipponese plans for sweeping domination of the conquered areas of China. "British domination of east Asia," he was quoted as saying, "is ended for all time. . . . A new government for the Chinese republic will be modeled somewhat on that of the United States. From the standpoint of military affairs and foreign policy the outstanding fact of the new China will be an alliance with Japan." In the face of contrary reports, he said: "The rights of all foreign powers in China will remain untouched."

HANKOW, Oct. 27.—(P)—The conquering Japanese, clinching control of Hankow, today shot scores of Chinese soldiers or civilians luckless enough to be taken for soldiers and proposed dissolution of a civilian refugee zone.

Twenty uniformed and civilian-garbed Chinese were executed within sight of the United States Yangtze river patrol flagship Luzon.

(The United Press reported that Chiang Kai-shek, encouraged by news that the United States has sent a stiff note to Japan demanding a cessation of "unwarranted" Japanese interference with United States trade in China, had reformed his battered armies west and southwest of Hankow and prepared to resist new Japanese attacks.)

It was reliably understood the Japanese command offered to keep its troops out of the designated civilian district, leaving only military police there to maintain order.

During the transition from Chinese to Japanese control there was no disorder in the former foreign concessions. This was due largely to the presence along the waterfront of the American and British gunboats and shore patrols of American and British sailors.

Japanese planes today scattered leaflets in English and Chinese, The English leaflets belatedly urged foreigners to take shelter during street fighting and warned them that the Japanese were prepared to search for and remove any Chinese soldiers harbored on foreign property.

Changing Moods of First Lady Caught by Camera

The First Lady is serious—and then she smiles. Here are two excellent camera studies of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, a fleeting visitor to Atlanta yesterday. On the left, Mrs. Roosevelt says, "I don't agree with all the policies of the national woman's party." and then she breaks into a big grin as she explains: "I write my column in a flash when I have help, but it takes me hours to do it alone." Her column, "My Day," is a daily feature of The Constitution.

FOUR MEN JAILED IN SLAYING OF LEE

Two St. Simons Resort Operators Named as Men Behind Rectory Crime.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 26.—(P)—Two St. Simons Island resort operators were charged today with hiring two negroes to kill Dr. Charles H. Lee eight months ago so the vice-hating rector of historic Christ church no longer could oppose illicit gambling.

Police Chief J. E. Register, who announced arrest of the quartet on murder warrants, said one of the negroes, George Cleyborn, made an oral confession implicating the resort operators, Henry J. Cofer and W. H. Cofer, middle-aged brothers, and naming the other negro, known to him only as "Willie" or "Looney" as the actual slayer.

Dr. Lee was killed near midnight February 5 by a mysterious shot from the dark as he sat in the rectory preparing a sermon.

Chief Register quoted Cleyborn as reporting he fired one shot and missed. He told officers "Willie" then said, "Give me that gun" and fired the shot that killed Dr. Lee.

The police chief said Cleyborn recited that Henry Cofer gave him $150 and the pistol to kill the clergyman and that W. H. Cofer hired "Willie" to help.

Attorneys for the Cofers said the brothers denied all connection with the case.

Woman's Tip Revealed.
Chief Register credited Chief Ben T. Watkins of the Macon police and two of the latter's staff with co-operation in rounding up the case. In Macon, Watkins said a young woman convict whose name was withheld provided "the foothold we needed in breaking" the case. Watkins said she told of observing, as an innocent spectator, one of the Cofers brothers pay a negro $150 the night Dr. Lee was killed. She was paroled October 12.

(It was learned in Atlanta last night that the woman who helped break the Lee case is Carrie Stevens, wife of Herschel Stevens, who pleaded guilty to participation in alleged robbery and was given a year in prison several months ago.)

(Her husband still is in prison. She entered a plea of guilty after goods, allegedly stolen by her husband in the Cofers establishment and in the cottage of Lee Davis on St. Simons Island, were found in her home.)

Chief Register asserted he had corroborating witnesses, whose names he withheld, to bolster his case. Cleyborn, he said, confessed before him, Solicitor W. Ben Gibbs of the Brunswick circuit, and Sergeant Jimmy Bisson.

Busy 'Off Day' Is Spent Here By First Lady

Activities Include Trips to Bulloch Hall and Warm Springs.

By ANNIE LOU HARDY.

On an "off day" spent in Atlanta yesterday, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt made a trip to Roswell to visit Bulloch Hall, lunch with her close friend, Mrs. Stephen Ives, motored to Warm Springs to look things over at the Little White House, dined there with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Toombs, and motored back to Atlanta for the night.

In between times, she granted interviews to press representatives, posed for photographs, and found time to greet numerous Atlanta friends.

To an ordinary individual it would have been considered a very full day, but to the indefatigable First Lady of the land it was an "off day," because it meant a lull between the engagements of the lecture tour she is making through the south. She came to Atlanta from Birmingham early yesterday and will leave this morning for Columbia, S. C., where she is scheduled to lecture tonight.

Yesterday's visit was not her first to Bulloch Hall, the girlhood home of her grandmother, Mittie Bulloch, who afterwards became Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and the mother of the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

"I was showing the place to a group of friends," she said.

A year ago the vote on returning colonies was 24 per cent for, 76 per cent opposed.

Sally Clark To Continue 'Career' After Marriage, She Tells World

Informal Reporter Wedding Was Moved Up to Lengthen Honeymoon.

By ELIZABETH GLASS.

(Copyright, 1938, by The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—"Of course I'll continue my singing after I'm married."

That's the decision of Sally Clark, Boston society girl whose sister Ann recently married John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President. Near by as she speaks is her fiancé, George McLanahan, seated at a table in the Persian room of the Hotel Plaza. Mr. McLanahan is waiting patiently for Miss Clark to begin her 15 minutes of song before the spotlights.

Miss Clark herself recently made news by advancing the wedding from January 6 to December 3—reason, so that she and her husband-to-be could sail to Honolulu on their honeymoon instead of Nassau. "And because the first part of January is a bad time. Everyone feels so hung over."

BRITISH OPPOSED TO COLONY DEAL

Majority Would Fight Rather Than Give in to Germans, Survey Finds.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Evidence of a stiffening of public opinion in England toward Hitler's drive for territorial expansion is revealed in a survey just completed by the British Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Institute.

This study shows that an overwhelming majority of Britons are not only against giving back to Germany any of her former colonies, but say they would actually fight rather than hand them over.

The British Institute, whose reports appear in England in the London News Chronicle, asked a cross-section of British voters in the latest survey:

"Are you in favor of giving back any former German colonies?"

For returning colonies 15%
Against 85%

Those who voted against the return were asked: "Would you rather fight than hand them back?" The vote was:

Yes 78%
No 22%

A year ago the vote on returning colonies was 24 per cent for, 76 per cent opposed.

SALLY SAVER'S FAVORITE RECIPE CONTEST

This will be a good time for us to share with each other our favorite nut recipes. So send your very best and most unusual recipes to Sally Saver, care The Atlanta Constitution, and if your letter is published in this column Sally'll send you $1.00. ### THREE MEALS A DAY

HOME TESTED RECIPES

BY Sally Saver

In calling for your favorite lemon recipes in "the contest this week Sally had in mind that lemons are now so very inexpensive and that they are one of the most healthful of foods. Included in the diet, lemons exert a beneficial "balancing" influence, and during the winter, when we are apt to eat richer foods, they are an invaluable health aid.

In Western China the true lemon is called Chang Sheng Kuo—the long life fruit, and they recommend that lemons be used as a condiment to food. Too, it is the belief of science that oranges and lemons, so rich in vitamin C, fortify against fatigue.

Lemon juice lends flavor to many foods. Try lemon juice with salt served as a dressing for tomatoes, sliced cucumbers, lettuce, combination vegetable or other salads, to replace heavy oil dressings. Lemon juice should be substituted for rich sauces served with fish, and is delicious with tea.

Have you thought of putting up lemon juice for your emergency shelf? Mrs. Alvin Rosasco, 1662 Thirty-third street, N. W., Washington, D. C., sends her fine recipes for lemon syrup and a good home remedy, lemon cough syrup.

Lemon Syrup.

Equal parts sugar and lemon. Strain juice; bring to boil; add sugar. Boil 5 minutes. Pour in scalded jars. Seal.

Use for pies, sauces, over vegetables, drinks, etc.

Lemon Cough Syrup.

Equal parts honey and lemon juice. Boil juice; str in; add honey; bring to boil again. Seal or bottle.

"This is a splendid cough syrup for babies and children," writes Mrs. Rosasco. "The honey acts as an emollient and helps clear the system."

"My best thanks to you, Sally Saver, for your interesting, varied and unusual recipes."

Lemon Roll.

Make a nice pastry (two cups flour), roll thin. Cream one cup of sugar and half cup of butter, beating in the grated rind and juice of one lemon. Spread over pastry, roll it, put in pan and bake brown. Serve with egg sauce or eat with coffee.

A colorful vegetable dish is suggested by Mrs. Thomas E. Bryant, 388 Winnsboro place, Spartanburg, S. C., who writes: "Instead of using pepper rings I often use lemon rings for asparagus and I serve it hot with the following lemon sauce:

Lemon Sauce.
"In double-boiler put 1 tablespoon salad oil, 2 tablespoons corn starch and 1 cup milk. Cook till thick, add 3 tablespoons salad oil. Remove from stove. Stir in again 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, a dash of pepper and paprika. Beat in 1 egg yolk and reheat slowly. Pour over asparagus."

GEORGIANS INVITE WALLACE TO SPEAK

Secretary of Agriculture May Make Macon Address.
ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 27.—(P)—Robert M. Stiles, of Cartersville, president of the United Georgia Farmers, said today Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace had been invited to speak in Georgia "around the middle of November." He said the secretary probably would speak in Macon if the invitation is accepted. Stiles said his organization and the Georgia Co-operative Council had issued the invitation to the secretary, and that Wallace had been invited to "speak to farmers and others interested in the agricultural welfare of Georgia and neighboring states." Stiles left here for Washington, D. C., where, he said, he hoped to secure acceptance of the invitation.

Editor's note: "In the midst of nerve wracking noise and disorder, scorching shells and crumbling wreckage Caroline pauses to ruefully plan for her boy's birthday. 'He is so young to understand that gifts for birthdays are beyond our dreams.' But for the moment, she sent a small lamb, terrified by the noise of the guns onto the back porch."

"I wrapped him in a warm blanket, and fed him from a bottle. In the morning John found him. His maternal instincts aroused, he assured me that I could not have thought of a finer gift. Later, Old Jones stopped in with a fine catch of oysters, so John shall have a gala dinner." (Copyright N. J. Bond.)

Drop of 8,500 in Traffic Deaths Expected in 1938 by Safety Body

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—(P)—The man on the street and the man behind the wheel have joined efforts to make 1938 the "most encouraging traffic safety year in the nation's history."

The National Safety Council so reported tonight in complimenting pedestrian and driver alike for caution that made September the ninth consecutive month this year to show a substantial reduction in motor vehicle fatalities.

The death total for the first nine months of 1938 was 22,130, a reduction of 5,820 or 21 per cent from the total of 27,950 for the same 1937 period.

If the rate of the reduction can be maintained, the council said, this year's traffic fatality total will be 8,500 below the 39,500 reported in 1937, and 1938 will be the second year to show a decrease since the nation-wide count of the automobile dead began in 1906.

But, the council warned, the "bugaboo months" of November and December lie ahead.

The council reported Pennsylvania led the states in the important business of saving lives on streets and highways during the first nine months of 1938. It had a drop of 39 per cent in fatalities. Michigan was a close second with a 38 per cent decline.

Chicago led the cities in reduced fatalities with 141. Detroit ranked next with 126.

U. S. WARNS JAPAN ON RIGHTS IN CHINA

United States gives Japanese here. Unofficial foreign affairs experts suggested three steps this government might take:

1. Restrictions on the trade of Japanese merchants with the American market.
2. Denunciation of the commercial treaty of 1911, which provides for equality of business opportunity for Americans in Japan and Japanese in this country.
3. Placing Japan on the United States' economic blacklist, a position now occupied by Germany because of her alleged discrimination against American goods. This is a threat with a punch in it and many students of foreign affairs considered it the most likely to be carried out, partly because it could be invoked quickly by Presidential proclamation.

List of Accusations.

The United States note, 3,000 words long, was a fundamental statement of America's position. It accused Japan of trying to monopolize all commerce, transport and communication in China by setting up pseudo-Chinese monopolies; with manipulating the currency in north China; with tampering with the tariffs; with keeping American businessmen from their properties, and with censoring and interfering with American mail and telegrams at Shanghai.

Declaring American trade had been virtually squeezed out of Manchuria by Japanese manipulations, the note said:

"The government of the United States is now apprehensive lest there develop in other areas of China which have been occupied by Japanese military forces since the beginning of the present hostilities a situation similar in its adverse effect upon the competitive position of American business to that which now exists in Manchuria."

MRS. OSA JOHNSON LECTURES TONIGHT

Noted Traveler Will Open Emory Season.

Osa Johnson, widow of the famous African explorer, Martin Johnson, will appear at Glenn Memorial auditorium at 8:15 o'clock tonight as the first presentation of the 1938-39 season by the Emory University Student Lecture Association.

The noted woman traveler will supplement her lecture with a moving picture, "Jungle Calling," which is a summary of her life in pursuit of photographic game. It contains excerpts from all the pictures she made with her husband.

Mrs. Johnson will bring with her the atmosphere of Africa, as she recently returned from the Dark Country where she filmed shots for a motion picture based on the lives of Stanley and Livingstone.

George James trapped three black bears, weighing from 250 to 300 pounds. And townsfolk retires seeing partridges, deer and a pair of foxes on the highway at Phillips, Maine.

Clever Change of Accessories Alters Styles

Models in the fall and winter review of practical fashions sponsored by Sears department store at The Constitution's garden school show how styles can be changed by clever changes of accessories. Left to right are Mrs. Loraine Belmont, who wears a wine dinner dress; Mildred and Marion Hollingsworth, and Frances Evans, who wears a black dress ornamented with gold jewelry.

Discussion of Fall Garden Work Closes Constitution's School Here

'This Is Time of Year to Correct All Mistakes,' Mrs. Crown Declares at Closing Class of Most Successful Session Ever Sponsored.

Atlanta gardeners were given an impetus to go to work among their flowers and shrubs yesterday as Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown, of Decatur, closed The Constitution's fall garden school at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium.

Speaking on "Fall Garden Work," Mrs. Crown gave garden lovers some hints on what they can be doing in their gardens now. She was introduced by Mrs. Evan McConnell, president of the Lullwater Garden Club.

The garden school this year was acclaimed the most successful ever sponsored by The Constitution. Similar schools have been held each fall and spring for the past four years.

"This is the time of year to correct all mistakes in your garden," Mrs. Crown said. "This is the time to rearrange it and put some design in it—time to plant new shrubs and move old ones."

Deep Holes Needed. The directors pointed out that in planting shrubs most gardeners fail to dig holes that are large and deep enough. Before the shrub is placed in the hole there should be a layer of ashes, soil, manure and then more soil, she said.

Two people are required to plant a shrub properly—one to hold the shrub and one to pull the dirt around the roots, she explained. Then the soil should be melted into the roots with water. And if a shrub is planted properly it cannot be pulled up.

Mrs. Crown said the ideal time for planting or moving shrubs extends from October to February. However, any plant with fleshy roots should not be moved until early spring.

In discussing roses, Mrs. Crown said it sometimes helps to replant roses if they have been in one place for three or four years. Location is important, too. She recommended planting them in the sun and added they must be sheltered and well drained.

Shape of Bed. Shape of the bed also has a great deal to do with the success of growing roses, she declared.

She suggested long beds that are not over five feet wide. The roses should be planted from 15 to 18 inches apart. She advised gardeners to wait until December to prune them.

"You must feed roses with bone-meal or super phosphate, and you must also do a good job of spraying them," she said.

Mrs. Crown also explained now is the time to plant bulbs and grass, but added tulip bulbs should not be planted until December. And as for hyacinths, Mrs. Crown thinks they are coming back into style.

Depth of planting bulbs should be two and one-half times their diameter, Mrs. Crown pointed out. She also stressed the importance of digging up the garden deep enough.

"Most of us never go deeper than 15 inches," she said, "but we should try going down to 24 or 30 inches sometime to see what is down there. I think it might be a good idea to get a helper and tell him that somewhere in your garden is buried a pot of gold 24 inches beneath the surface. Then you could be assured that your garden would be dug up 24 inches deep all over."

Keep Leaves. The director emphasized the importance of having a leaf mold pile hid somewhere in the yard. She said leaves should never be burned but should be put to use in the planting of shrubs. Grant Park Garden Club, of which Mrs. P. H. Savin is president, won the grand prize of $25 for the best attendance during the three days of the garden school. Decatur Garden Club won yesterday's attendance prize. Mrs. W. C. Kirby is president of the Decatur Club.

Preceding the final garden school classes, models in the fall and winter review of practical fashions sponsored by Sears Department Store exhibited the different ways in which styles may be changed by clever accessory changes. Mrs. Crown will leave Sunday to conduct garden schools in Pensacola, Fla., and Mobile, Ala.

SOUTH'S 'DISCOVERER' TO SPEAK IN COLUMBUS COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 27.—(AP) Nearly 1,000 teachers and school officials from the third district of the Georgia Education Association are expected to hear Jonathan Daniels here tomorrow when the North Carolina editor and author makes the principal address at the district meeting. ### COLUMBUS STARTED SOMETHING

Although Christopher Columbus was not the first European to set foot on the New World, the real history of discovery, exploration and colonization of America by Europeans dates from that first voyage of his. The "Histo-Graph of America"—a large chart showing in graphic form the principal events in the history and development of America, from the Viking voyages down to the Roosevelt administration—and showing also contemporary events in Europe—is available from our Service Bureau in Washington. ## ATLANTA COUPLE IS WED IN WHALE

Marriage Performed in Mouth of Sea-Monster on Exhibit Here.

A youthful Atlantan and his bride were married last night in the monster jaws of "Colossus," 66-ton whale, at Peters and Castleberry streets, as 3,000 spectators looked on and applauded. The bride and bridegroom were Hazel Caricofe and Albert Hardy, who early this week asked sponsors of the whale exhibition to permit them to marry under these interesting circumstances. Judge J. G. Slappey performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy did not linger in the whale once the ceremony was performed. They escaped from the crowd with difficulty and left for an unannounced honeymoon destination. The Mammoth Marine Hippodrome, in which the whale is being exhibited, will remain in Atlanta through Sunday, officials said. Children's day will be observed tomorrow.

GLORIA SWANSON'S GIRL HAS HER FIRST DATE

Pretty Gloria Somborn, 18-year-old daughter of Gloria Swanson, star of the silent films, had her first date without a chaperon at the annual registration dance at Stanford University, Cal. She declared she was "ticked to death" and had the time of her life as "at home I wasn't even allowed to go out with a boy unless chaperoned."

someone else," she said, the someone proving to be her secretary, Miss Malvina Thompson, whom she calls "Tony." A picnic luncheon was first planned on the grounds surrounding the historic high-pillared old mansion, but these plans were changed in favor of luncheon at Mrs. Ives' home on Piedmont road. Invited to meet Mrs. Roosevelt were Mrs. Harry Greene and Mrs. Leonard Haas, both of whom are past presidents of the Atlanta League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Roosevelt's friendship with Mrs. Ives is one of long standing, dating back to the time when the Atlantan, as Ellen Atwood, visited the James Roosevelt Roosevelts next door to the Franklin Roosevelt home in Hyde Park. In fact the friendship between the Atwood and Roosevelt families extends back through three generations.

Strolls Into Hotel.

Following luncheon, Mrs. Roosevelt left her motor in front of the Henry Grady hotel which served as her home for the day, and, in characteristic fashion, strolled alone into the crowded lobby, leaving Miss Thompson and her chauffeur to bring up the rear. In her suite on the top floor, again in characteristic fashion, she graciously greeted interviewers and quickly answered a barrage of questions.

"How do I find time to do everything? I don't," she laughed. "I never get around to half the things I'd like to do."

When queried about the writing of her column, "My Day," appearing daily in The Constitution, she laughed again. "If I do it alone, it takes me a long, long time. But if I dictate it to 'Tony,' we get it done in a flash."

May Return in November.

"Will you be back in November with the President?" "Yes, I expect to," came her answer, and her face softened a bit as she continued: "Yes, I want to spend Thanksgiving with the people at Warm Springs."

At this point she called to Miss Thompson in the adjoining room. "Tony, will you take a telegram for me?"

And with the famous Eleanor Roosevelt smile which plainly said, "Will you excuse me now?" the interview was over.

While she was dictating the wire, she quickly disappeared into the next room to change her tailored tweed suit of soft blue for the trip to Warm Springs. Mr. and Mrs. Toombs were already waiting for her downstairs, it was 3:30 o'clock, and she had an 80-mile trip ahead of her.

Still, it was an "off day" for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

'FOOLPROOF PLANES' FOR ALL FORECAST

Aeronautics Leader Bases Faith in Development of 'Windmill' Type.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—(AP) The prospect that the average citizen can own a fool-proof flying machine in the future was voiced tonight by Dr. Alexander Klemm, chairman of the Guggenheim School of Aeronautics at New York University.

He warned against undue optimism for the present, however, because many imposing engineering problems remain to be solved before private flying even approaches the casualness of automobile driving.

Reviewing 20 years of experimentation in "windmill" flight, as opposed to conventional "fixed-wing" airplane flight, he said the ordinary airplane could not hope to equal the stability and safety features of rotary wing craft. He described two general classifications of windmill planes: The autogiro or gyroplane which has a canopy of lifting blades revolving as a blast of air strikes them, and the helicopter, with blades which are spun like automobile wheels—with power applied by a motor.

The autogiro, first brought to this country in 1928 by Juan de la Cierva, the Spaniard—killed two years ago in an airliner crash near London—uses an ordinary airplane propeller for propulsion, whereas a helicopter achieves horizontal flight by tilting the entire windmill.

Dr. Klemm pointed out that neither type of craft can "stall" or spin, and that both can be made to rise and descend vertically and loaf along at speeds of 5 to 16 miles an hour. The "jump-off" or vertical ascent autogiro was inroduced in the United States by Harold F. Pitts, Philadelphia manufacturer.

More than 20,000 persons are employed on WPA library projects in 38 states.

Fernand Gravet and Miliza Korjus will be seen soon at Loew's with Luise Rainer in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Great Waltz."

Waltz Contest Given Wide Acclaim By National Clubs and Orchestras

And You'd Better Watch Out, Youngsters, Because the Older Crowd May Dance Away With Honors at Wednesday Night Competition.

By LILLIE MAY ROBINSON.
So great is the interest in the revival of the waltz through the "Bring Back the Waltz" contest sponsored by The Constitution, that the National Federation of Music Clubs, the Better Movement Clubs, the Dance Masters of America and more than 7,000 bands and orchestras, the most outstanding of the country, are co-operating.

Wednesday night when the contest is held at the Henry Grady hotel, the evening's entertainment and contest will be broadcast over WATL, with one of the city's most prominent masters of ceremony in charge. Waltz music will be played by a leading Atlanta orchestra.

If you haven't sent in your registration blank, get busy today and do so. Otherwise, you'll be entirely out of luck when the gala night arrives. You'll just have to sit on the sidelines as a spectator, with no opportunity to win any one of the $25, $15 and $10 cash prizes. Nor will you have an opportunity to take part in the state and zone finals later, nor get a free trip to New York to compete in the national finals for a Hollywood contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer—the company is contributing "The Great Waltz" with Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet and Miliza Korjus, soon to be seen at Loew's as its part in the "Bring Back the Waltz" movement.

There are very young couples—that is, couples just 16—and there are couples well into the autumn of life, who have registered for the contest. The minimum age is 16, though there is no maximum. And just a little tip, you youngsters, you'd better get busy for otherwise there may be a silver-haired couple walking away with honors on next Wednesday evening. And remember! The couple who walks away with the $25 prize next Wednesday will be the couple in line for all else that is in store for city, state, zone and national winners.

Read the coupon below carefully, and get it without delay into the hands of the "Bring Back the Waltz" Contest Editor of The Constitution. Delays are dangerous, and in this instance, one such might deprive you of fun, entertainment, fame and fortune!

F. D. R. WARNS NAVY 'MUST BE READY'

Roosevelt and 5,000,000 Other Americans Honor Sea Fighting Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(P)—The navy, host to the nation, paraded its power today for President Roosevelt and several million other Americans.

A few hours after his admonition that the fleet must be ready to insure "positive protection against any aggressor," the commander in chief witnessed maneuvers of a half-dozen crack war planes and glimpsed one of the newest destroyers at the Washington navy yard.

Officials estimated that 5,000,000 other persons visited shore stations or ships for the annual Navy Day observance in ports on the Atlantic, gulf and Pacific coasts, and in the offshore possessions. They saw sham battles, gun drills and aircraft demonstrations.

Mr. Roosevelt's Navy Day comment that "the fleet must be ready" and his view of "unsettled world conditions" were shared by numerous navy spokesmen.

Mr. Roosevelt, accompanied by Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, motored between lines of sailors and marines at the navy yard, and then boarded the yacht Potomac for an afternoon cruise.

Malay, the simple commercial language of the East Indies, has spread so widely that 40 nationalities now speak it to the exclusion of their mother tongues.

Admiral Woodward Honored in Naval Day Program

Georgia's observance of Navy Day was climaxed last night by a banquet in honor of Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, a native Atlantan. Left to right, are Jesse Draper, active in the naval reserve and toastmaster of last night's banquet; Admiral Woodward, Governor Rivers and Major General Stanley D. Embick, new commander of the Fourth Corps Area and the Third Army.

NAVY ON UPGRADE, ADMIRAL ASSERTS

Construction Program Makes America Respected, Woodward Declares Here.

The navy is coming into its own again as the strong arm of the government after 12 long years of stagnation and unwise economy in naval appropriations, Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, commander of the Third Naval district, declared last night in a radio address from Atlanta.

The admiral spoke immediately after a reception and Navy Day dinner in his honor at the Biltmore. Present were officers of the Atlanta Naval Reserve battalion, government officials and officers of the army and navy, including Senator Russell, Congressman Robert Ramspeck, Governor Rivers, Major General Stanley D. Embick, commander of the Fourth Corps area; Captain Reed M. Fa-

Hundreds See Man Save Himself in Fall

Aghast, hundreds of Atlantan at the height of the late-afternoon rush hour yesterday saw a young stoneworker agilely save himself from a perhaps fatal fall off scaffolding at the third floor level of the Atlanta National building, Whitehall and Alabama streets, undergoing alterations.

The workman, Charles Caldwell, 23, slipped suddenly from the scaffolding. The hurrying crowd stopped and peered, tense, fearful, while Caldwell clutched desperately a two-by-four wooden beam several feet below the platform.

It was over in a moment, for the muscular Caldwell tightened his grip and slowly drew himself again to the safety of the scaffold.

Caldwell, who lives at 698 Piedmont avenue, was unscathed.

well, commander of the Tech R. O. T. C. unit, and Jesse Draper, naval reserve officer and state chairman of Navy Day.

Former Naval Policy.

American naval policy between 1922 and 1933, was characterized by the speaker as a "desire to flaunt our idealistic gesture of unilateral disarmament before the world."

"It was an unshared idealism on the borderline of idiocy," he said. "Other nations simply laughed in their sleeves at our naivete and continued to build up their navies systematically and in accordance with carefully considered policies."

"But today," he continued, "as a result of the newly established naval construction program, our voice at the international conference tables now carries its proper weight and receives proper respect from abroad."

"Our relative rank among the world's navies—counting ships built, building and authorized—will put us as second to Great Britain. This statement is based, of course, on the assumption that Japan's building program is smaller than ours."

"We in America, want no more war. Our every effort is bent towards the maintenance of peace. However, neither earnest desire for continued peace nor strenuous efforts to make it lasting can insure us against involvement."

Woodward asserted aircraft never would "cause the disappearance of battleships," but were "necessary and potential adjuncts to a properly balanced fleet."

He added that planes in the major aspects of warfare are "comparatively short-ranged fighters, being unable to fly great distances with war loads, incapable of operating independently over vast areas of open sea, and dependent upon bases or tenders."

Admiral Woodward's speech closed a five-day celebration in the state, and ended a three-day home visit for the prominent Georgian.

He arrived here Tuesday, and inspected the Atlanta naval reserve battalion. Wednesday he spoke to 2,000 students at Berry Schools at Rome, and in accordance with naval etiquette began his calls on governing officials with a visit to Mayor Hartsfield.

Yesterday morning he satisfied protocol with calls on Governor Rivers and Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech. Later he was Dr. Brittain's guest at a review of the Tech naval R. O. T. C. unit, and at luncheon at the school.

A PROTEST TOO LATE

The latest note from the United States to Japan accusing that country of a campaign to take away America's trade with China, reads remarkably like a protest on a fact already accomplished. There seems little use in demanding that Japan maintain the "open door" in China when the door is already closed and Japanese sentries stand on guard.

If this surmise be true, and there is every evidence to support it, the purpose of the note of "warning" is not clear. Surely, this government does not contemplate the use of force to compel the Japanese to respect American interests, trade or otherwise, in China. Yet how else can the official "warning" be made effective against a nation which is committed entirely to the philosophy of force to gain its ends?

Japan now controls every channel of trade ingress into China, with the exception of the comparatively unimportant gateway through Indo-China. There is, too, a proposed route through Burma, but this is, as yet, but a proposal.

Japan controls Chinese customs. Shipping, banking and insurance are fast falling into her hands. Japan needs great exports from China, for her own industry and the maintenance of her own population. The only way she can pay for these is by imports of her own manufactured products. With full control of customs, tariffs, banking and shipping, it is certain that Japan will see to it that her goods go into China before those of any other nation, and on a preferential basis.

The "open door," is, to all intents and purposes, either closed and in process of closing and nothing else but compelling necessity can induce Japan to keep it open. Can the United States impose this necessity except through the force of arms? If not, the "warning" note sent to Tokyo becomes but an empty gesture, as futile as the threats made against Germany before the treaty of Munich.

It seems probable, too, that the United States is acting entirely alone in the new protest. Circumstantial evidence indicates that Great Britain, and possibly France, has capitulated to Japanese threat of armed force, just as it capitulated to the German threat.

The fall of Canton, judged only in the light of previous records of the Cantonese armies, was suspiciously easy. It is hard for the on-looker to understand why the Cantonese, who played such heroic part at Shanghai, should fade like snow before the Japanese armies at Canton. If, however, an "understanding" had been reached between Britain and Japan, prior to the attack on Canton, and if the Cantonese knew this, the debacle would become logical and clear. Similar logic can be applied to the final capture of Hankow, in a few days' time, after the Chinese had heroically defended that city for months. And to the sudden flight of Chiang Kai-shek from the doomed city.

It has been unofficially known, all through the Sino-Japanese struggle, that Chiang was receiving munitions and financial support from the democracies. Sudden withdrawal of this support would not only cripple the Chinese as to materials of war, but it would take away the hope and confidence that has inspired their arms throughout.

If Great Britain, as appears probable, has accepted the inevitable in the Orient, as in Europe at Munich, and has accepted terms for non-interference, from Tokyo, many things which now appear puzzling become plain.

For instance, if there is no understanding with Japan, how explain the apparent lack of British concern over that important crown colony of Hongkong?

Japan has, undoubtedly, achieved her principal goals in China. There will be guerrilla warfare with the Chinese, maybe for years. The Japanese army faces a long and hard task in completely subduing the conquered land. But that Japanese army is in control. And, under such control, there can be no doubt the day of the "open door" in China for the western nations is a thing of the past.

Britain appears to have accepted that development. Probably France, too, has bowed to the Oriental inevitable.

Only the United States files official protest. And the big question of the day remains, "Why?"

OPPORTUNITY, OR PROBLEM?

Fortune Magazine calls the south the "Number One Opportunity" of the nation. President Roosevelt, in a now famous statement, called this section the "Number One Problem."

Both, in a sense, are correct. Both looked at the same picture, but from different angles; both sought to express similar idea, but in different nomenclature.

There are, in the south, many problems that cry aloud for solution. All southerners know that. There are, it is true, many problems of other sections which cry just as loudly, but inasmuch as the spotlight has been placed upon the south, it is proper to confine analysis to this area.

The south presents many opportunities. It possesses natural advantages other sections cannot boast and, from those advantages, as surely as from fertile seed in rich ground, will come an increase so manifold it will, someday, be a matter for delighted wonder.

That industry awoke to the opportunity in the south long before the President dubbed it a "problem," is evidenced by the fact that, in 1937, 29 per cent of the industrial expansion in the nation took place in the south. Private interest is not slow, once opportunity is heard, to answer the knock upon its door.

Much of the direct and implied criticism of the south contained in the report which inspired the Rooseveltian "problem" statement, arose from the failure to understand that life and living are not, in final analysis, things to be measured with the cold calculations of dollars and cents. Pointing to lower average incomes in the south, compared to other regions, without taking into account innumerable other factors of life, is to draw false conclusions and picture erroneous conditions.

Life in a humble cottage in the southern hills, even though many of the modern conveniences and luxuries are barred, is basically far better than life, on twice or three times the cash income, in a tenement of one of the big cities of the north or east. There are intangibles, the sky and the sun, the forests and the hills, that cannot be calculated in statistics, but which have a tremendous effect upon the scheme of living as a whole.

The south, and the nation, will both profit tremendously when the inevitable development of this region, in all lines, comes into full fruition. But that development will come far more rapidly from those who regard it as opportunity, than from those who see only the problem. The former is positive, constructive thinking. The latter is a negative, defeatist mode of thought.

PRO FOOTBALL PLANS

Sports lovers will watch with interest the discussions by members of the Southern Baseball Association relative to the establishment of a parallel professional football league in the south. The professional gridiron game has proved successful in other sections, and there is no reason why it could not draw in Dixie.

In the northern states, where professional football has been played for a number of years, it has proved intensely popular despite the generally adverse weather conditions which prevail. In the south this handicap is far less hampering and several months of moderate playing weather are provided after the close of the baseball season. Coupled with an abolition of the Shaughnessy play-off, shortening the baseball season slightly, professional football should prove that much more popular with southern fans.

Another factor which should sway the decision of the baseball moguls is that of now idle ball parks. These plants might as well be used, since the cost of their upkeep continues. If they were to be used, employment through most of the year could be given the staffs and the concession employees now thrown out of work with the close of the regular baseball season.

Professional football has a sound background. The game is faster than the college game, more technically perfect, at least equally interesting. Somehow it would seem quite logical for Atlanta to be sending a team forth to the football wars—one which could uphold the city's prowess in that field of sport. With professional football and, possibly in the near future, an ice hockey aggregation, the city would provide an unusually well-rounded athletic program.

Something new in milk shakes will be feeding a jigger of chocolate syrup to Oklahoma's 33-inch cow and shaking the cow.

The versatile mayor of Independence, Kan., crochets, and also makes lions. But maybe the lions don't know about the crocheting.

Editorial of the Day

WAGES AND TIPPING

(From The Montgomery Advertiser.)
Redcaps in many railroad terminals recently found their status extremely uncertain because of ambiguities in the wages and hours act, which has just gone into effect. In some cities, St. Louis for example, half the force at the Union station was let off.

In the past most redcaps have depended solely upon tips for their income. Under the wages and hours act, apparently, they must be at least guaranteed the minimum.

If the act is far-reaching in its effect it will force many employers to pay salaries to their help who have otherwise depended upon gratuities. And it won't be a bad thing. In fact, if because of the wages and hours act tipping as a practice in this country were abolished, that piece of unpopular legislation might become suddenly popular.

There is hardly a more offensive practice in this civilized age than that of tipping. In other sections of the country it is much worse than in the south, but it is bad enough here. The opportunity seems about to present itself to make headway against this old unsatisfactory way of payment; certainly there is no good argument against abolishing tipping as soon as possible.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

FCC SHAKE-UP FORESEEN WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—A great government agency of the future is the Federal Communications Commission. So far, its history is short, and its activities have been aimless and occasionally sordid. But, sooner or later, the federal power over the whole vast system of modern communication, by telephone, telegraph, radio and television, will be used to establish a coherent national policy. And then the commission or some substitute for it will have to administer the policy.

The importance of the problem can scarcely be exaggerated—it's been convincingly argued, for example, that rapid communication makes modern dictatorship possible, by bringing a great state into the compass of a small room equipped with microphones. And it's of the greatest general interest, therefore, that the White House is pondering a drastic shake-up of the commission. The President is reliably reported to be as dissatisfied with the FCC situation as he was with that in the TVA before he ousted Chairman Arthur Morgan. It isn't necessary to retail the story of the FCC. Until a year ago, decidedly nasty rumors as to its management were current in Washington. At that time the President chose Power Commissioner Frank R. McNinch to be his FCC trouble-shooter, appointing him commission chairman. McNinch has done his best. But a determined minority among the commissioners has steadfastly opposed him. No concerted policy has emerged. And internal commission friction recently caused an unholy row over the dismissal of General Counsel Hampson Gary.

THORNY ALTERNATIVES

The President's attitude is the one he has disclosed at the time of the reorganization bill—that he is blamed for trouble in the independent agencies and must be permitted to clear up the trouble. With this in mind, he is understood to be considering three plans. All are based on the supposition that McNinch's efforts have unavoidably failed.

The first plan is for the President to call in the commissioners, demand their joint resignation and announce that the public interest cannot be served until they comply with his request. Since some of the commissioners are pig-headed, to say the least, this plan is more dramatic than practical.

The second plan is for the President to go to congress in January, ask for the abolition of the commission and suggest the establishment of a new agency, better planned and probably headed by a single administrator. Such a daring stroke would almost certainly be the signal for a congressional investigation of the FCC and, as New Deal bodies are said to be buried in the FCC garden, the course might be politically unwise.

The third plan is for the President simply to dismiss the more troublesome commissioners. Under the supreme court decision invalidating the President's dismissal of Trade Commissioner William Humphreys, this plan hasn't a constitutional leg to stand on. But the Humphreys case decision is believed to have angered the President more than any other action of the high bench. And the temptation must be strong to ask the present, friendlier court to reverse the decision.

THE HORNETS' NESTS The FCC problem illustrates the growing complexity of government. It's so lost among all the other pressing governmental problems that ninety-nine citizens in a hundred probably don't know there is such a thing as a Federal Communications Commission. Yet the ramifications of this single problem are really staggering.

There is, for example, the partially understandable complex of persecution by the press, which the President and his New Dealers cherish. They dream of making the radio tell what they call "their side of the story." In reshuffling the FCC, some effort in this direction is to be watched for and, by those who dislike government propaganda, carefully guarded against.

There is the charge that the FCC is now used to "tell the New Dealers' side of the story." While the FCC's powers over telephone and telegraph communication are limited, it is the dictator of radio. And the broadcasting chains are about the only great business enterprises which have jumped at a wink from the New Dealers. There is the fact that television is about to be put on a practical basis, which means that short-wave broadcasting bands will have to be parceled out and the whole question of commercial vs. non-profit management will have to be faced. There are the increasing doubts as to the wisdom of radio's dreary commercialization. There is the fundamental need for freedom of speech on the air. There is general argument as to the proper nature of independent commissions. And so it goes. When the President tackles the FCC problem, he will stir up all these hornets' nests.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

There are some things beyond comprehension.
Visions all reasons reject.
The eyes stares in dumb apprehension.
At some man's sartorial effect.

Why Do They Do This?

If the man of whom I am thinking happens to read this, he may feel affronted. And, gosh, he may be an influential Big Shot! Perhaps he'll go gunning for my hide. But what of it? I must make my report on the most intriguing silhouette of a day. So here goes, and the consequences be damned!

He was a total stranger to me. Never saw him, nor anyone like him, before. He was standing on a downtown street, in front of a well-known store.

He wore an attention-attracting check suit. It rather dazzled the eye but, as well as I remember, it was black and white. Evidently made by a costly tailor. Form-fitting and quite the advance style, you know.

A derby hat and a yellow cane. Spats of, I'll bet. And gloves. Forty or so, I should guess in the age question. He strutted, with the appearance that only comes immediately after a massage, with all the lotional trimmings, in some luxury barber shop.

But the thing that caught my eye, was the mustache. That was the focal point of the entire ensemble. Boy!

Tiny, it was, perched on that half-inch, upper lip space that is shaded by the nostrils. Black and extremely small. Both latitudinally and longitudinally. But it had two tiny spike points that stuck straight forward, at either end. Minute, to match the mustache itself. I should guess about three-eighths of an inch in length. Waxed to shining points, aggressively challenging.

Now, what I want to know, is why? Why does one supposedly sane man cultivate such a ridiculous appendage upon one-fifth of his upper lip? Why does any supposedly intelligent being affect a complete sartorial get-up, such as this man displayed? From my view, it was more absurd than any pictured chief of the wilder African wilds I've ever seen pictured.

Is It Supposed To Be Attractive?

Let's concentrate on that mustache, leaving the rest just for background. Does anyone imagine such an atrocity is attractive to any man who sees it? Surely the wearer of that mustache doesn't believe it will help him in business contacts with other men. Seems to me it would be a fearful handicap to anyone with anything to sell. And who hasn't got something to sell, now days?

Perhaps the fellow is a collector of feminine admirers. But do women really like to see such a mustache? Any woman appearing in public with the wearer must suffer, because so much attention would be directed to her own appearance, no matter how striking or lovely she might be, nor how expensive her own turn-out.

And there'd be no possibility of affection, or its developments, with such a partner. For no girl could kiss the guy. There's a thought! Maybe he is plotting a new murder mystery—plans to kiss the gal and stick the poisoned points of his mustache into her lip.

Maybe such is attractive to some women. But, then, the type of woman who would be attracted by such, wouldn't be worth attracting, I should think. For she couldn't, possibly, have either reasonable intelligence nor any sense of humor. If she had, humor she couldn't walk across a room or down a theater aisle with her partner and keep a straight face.

Maybe He's A Hermit.

Maybe, however, the fellow is one of those oddities, a soul who prefers loneliness and would like, always, to be alone, even in the midst of a crowd. I'd think he'd achieve his desire, if that is a true guess.

But there's one thing overlooked. Perhaps he's advertising something.

Must be razor blades. On the principle of the horrible example. Maybe some rival's blades won't cut under the nose. And he is the fearful warning of what could happen, if you persist in using those poor blades.

Well, let's be thankful most of us use blades that will cut under the nose as well as around the chin corners and over the wide expanse of the cheeks. For sideburns or chin whiskers are bad, too. But not as bad, and ridiculous, as that wisp of mustache which has, at least, filled this column for today.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Tuesday, October 28, 1913:
"Preliminary plans for Atlanta's new $1,500,000 plaza project will be discussed at a meeting of the committees of council and the chamber of commerce at city hall at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Sunday, October 28, 1888:

"Miss Katie Claxton, the distinguished and magnetic artist, will open the week Monday in her new play, 'The World Against Her.' She will repeat it at the Tuesday matinee and, by request, will present at night 'The Two Orphans,' a drama with which her name is linked in the minds of the American public."

Luther's Wittenberg.

Visitors to Luther's city of Wittenberg in Germany today may see the famous theses that he nailed on the church door in 1517. The present door is of metal and the text of his protest is deeply inscribed in the metal.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Coming NEW YORK, Oct. 7. Yes, I know what the In Hordes Constitution says. But still and all, they come piling in here in hordes with a cardboard suitcase and a letter of introduction to someone who has preceded them to take advantage of the opportunities, and yet you will find thousands of them who never do come to feel that they belong here. They don't want to take a stake in the place. Instead they send our good money back home and cling together to keep alive in the old traditions and avoid being assimilated. And all the time they are knocking, knocking, knocking and yearning for the day when they have made a pile here so that they can go home again and live like kings in retirement on the cheap rate of exchange.

You do a little nosing around in New York and you will find little groups of state societies—Hoosiers talking about the frost on the pumpkin and singing about the banks of the Wabash, southerners talking about their old colored mamies and singing about the fields of snowy white, Californians who were starving to death when they left home, yelling "California, here I come!" and even Kansans, by God, giving themselves a build-up about the joys and kind fraternity of life on the steppes.

Trains What I say is, if they loved it so, why do they come here where they came from why didn't they stay there? And if they are so fastened to the simple honesty and charm of life back home, well, the trains and buses still keep regular schedules, and if they aren't fast enough there are always the air lines. But can you picture a Hoosier going back to the candlelight which gleams through the sycamores in the song they love to sing and unclutching a swell job in New York at ten times the most he ever made back home? Candlelight! That is a hot one! Let the power go off for one night in New York on account of some labor trouble, for instance, and give them just a little dose of that candlelight stuff and listen to the squawks. Candlelight may be romantic on the banks of the Wabash in the song, but it would be darkness of the nation's hour of doom in New York.

And clannish! One comes to town, hustles around for a few years, makes a nice little spot for himself, meanwhile sending New York dough home, and pretty soon he has got his nephew or his fraternity brother from old Siwash, or Sparsfish, planted in the town. While New York boys walk the streets with 0 in their pockets and 0 to do. Then there comes along his deceased sister's daughter just out of college and he sends her in for a job with another back-homer up the streets, and the first thing anybody knows there is a regular hatch of them earning a living in New York—hating New York, constantly knocking New York, wishing New York was like the place they were so eager to get away from and treating the regular New Yorkers like dirt under their feet.

Mollusks

One moves into a neighborhood or something—and like those little shell gags in the ocean, those what-do-you-call-them, mollusks or something, they tie together—and pretty soon there is a regular island of them. One throws his business orders to the other and vice versa, and if there comes a little squeeze from one of the natives to obtain some business or a job, why, that only goes to prove what a lousy town New York is and what low ethics New York has. And they are appalled by the graft and crime, as though nobody ever used the squeeze or took down any political lug or stuck up a jug back home. In Oklahoma or Ohio, for instance.

Yes, I know what the Constitution says, but I say if this town is good enough to make a living in they ought to have to make up their minds whether they are going to be New Yorkers or not, and if not get the hell back where they came from. Or, anyway, quit hollering about how they wish they were back there when everybody knows you couldn't bribe them to get up the soft living and big money they get here.

The only reason they think they want to go back home is that they figure they can get some scrawny little daughter of a poverty-stricken neighbor to do the housework for $2 a week and some college boy in the coolie labor class to wash the windows, mind the furnace and the lawn and drive the car for $6 a week, plus a cot in the woodshed and scraps from the table. But they never go back.

Isn't only the clannishness about jobs and business; it's the resistance to the manners and customs and spirit of New York. They just refuse to get assimilated.

Frogs in Wash Basin.

When a San Diego, Cal., citizen phoned the health department that live frogs were suddenly appearing in his wash basin, thus hampering his morning shave, the department was skeptical. It sent Inspector F. P. Parvinn to investigate.

Parvinn returned with a live frog. "I caught him as he stuck a leg out of the drain," he reported. Investigation showed that several frogs had entered the bathroom through the drain pipe.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

IN OUR TOWN Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt spent yesterday in our town. It is my opinion she is a grand person. She very definitely is a person.

I have heard some people say they think her column is composed of trivialities and therefore not good. It is my opinion that life itself is filled with trivialities. Certain it is that life is not filled with great, huge and important things during every shining hour. The important things can become such a bore. Heaven knows the person who goes along filled always with very important things, usually is found to be filled with very warm air. Or even hot.

Her column is a good column and a readable one. Don't think for a moment the newspapers would be running it merely because it was being written by Mrs. Roosevelt. It is paid for and carried in the papers because it is read and enjoyed by many people.

I do not know Mrs. Roosevelt well. In the course of some newspaper work I have trudged after her while she inspected housing projects, their laundries, kitchens, baths and refrigerators. I have gone into a couple of jails with her and heard her complain that one of the meals she ate in the jails here was one of the worst she ever had in jail. It didn't sound funny until put down on paper.

She is such a grand and very sincere person that it is most annoying to have some people attempt to describe her as an affected person. She has a very unusual intelligence and has made a great contribution to tolerance and understanding in America. She has unbending energy and the purest enthusiasm I have ever encountered.

Not long ago General Hugh Johnson, in writing of Mrs. Roosevelt, said that if ever the nation wanted a woman for President, he had his candidate picked out. I could subscribe to that without a tremor. In fact, next to Mr. Roosevelt himself, the most outstanding person in public life is Mrs. Roosevelt.

ALSO IN OUR TOWN Also in our town yesterday was Mr. Jonathan Daniels, whose provocative book, "A Southerner Discovers the South," has aroused ire and enthusiasm. Mr. Daniels has been speaking here and there. He spoke a couple or three times in Atlanta on Thursday.

At one meeting he said: "I think the fact Georgia and the south has an illiteracy quota and that people can't read is not as important as the fact many of those who can don't. Ignorance in some of our great industrial offices; in a well-dressed lady in a great house; ignorance among the 'best people,' is more distressing than that to be found in the shacks of tenants and sharecroppers."

"It is not they who have created our problems. The problems have been created by those at the top. They have pulled the poorer ignorant ones behind them."

Mr. Daniels' book has been received with mixed emotions. It has been condemned, praised, and screamed at. All of which is healthy. He set people to talking. A writer or a thinker who can set people to debating is valuable. Out of such debates and pro and con arguments comes truth.

Mr. Daniels will agree the things he discovered were not new. The south has known them for some time. But it also must be admitted we had planted honeysuckle to cover some of them and had trained ourselves not to see others. It really is unimportant whether or not Mr. Daniels was correct in all his deductions. The important thing is, he put us to looking at them and to talking about them.

Mr. Daniels is a newspaperman; a working newspaperman. All newspapermen are going to write a book. Now and then one does. Thereby is illustrated the newspaper axiom that now and then the man does bite the dog.

ALSO IN THE BOOK MARTS Also in our town yesterday, was Mr. Munro Leaf, who writes books for children and whose book, "Ferdinand the Bull," is to be done into a movie by Walt Disney. Mr. Leaf has no children but will not long remain in that childless state. He expects soon to become a father. Once his child is here Mr. Leaf ought to write even better children's books although, I must say, his present ones will be difficult to improve.

The story of Ferdinand is the story of the bull which did not like the idea of becoming a fighting bull. He preferred flowers. But one day, when the matadors were there, he sat on a bee. But, after all, it is Mr. Leaf's story.

AND YET ANOTHER ONE! Yet another one, puffing on a cigar and autographing books, was Mr. Frederick H. McDonald. His book is "How To Promote Community and Industrial Development."

He discusses the problem of study and activity in the promotion of the economic life of communities in relation to total community welfare. A consulting engineer, he is a specialist in the location and development of industries and in the analysis of local community growth.

It was quite a day for talking and listening. International discussions are stimulating, valuable and exciting. But, after all, our little red wagon is here in Georgia and the south.

The Penalty Should Not Fit the Crime But the Criminal

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

In ancient times a Greek philosopher gave to his neighbors a wise admonition that has been repeated by thinkers in every generation. "Know thyself."

Since men are urged to do only the things they have left undone, the obvious explanation of so much urging is that man does not know himself.

He feels two natures struggling within him, and well he may. The primitive animal struggles against the civilized conscience; nature against ethics; the blood of the father's tribe against the blood of the mother's; the qualities inherited from one sex against qualities inherited from the other. And the conflicting influences of environment, training and experience, and the result is a mystery that no man will easily unravel.

If, then, through want of understanding or want of trying, man fails to know himself, how much less he is capable of understanding his fellows.

It is not too much to say that nobody understands anybody. We do not understand our own children. Husbands and wives, after years of the closest intimacy, are confident of their ability to understand one another, yet each has secret opinions and desires which the other never suspects.

How, then, can any man fairly judge and condemn a stranger without other guidance than conflicting testimony concerning one point of behavior?

The judgments of the law cannot be fair, except by accident, for the law is necessarily inflexible. It must define offenses, and, within certain limits, fix the penalties. This has always seemed necessary; yet it clearly violates common sense, for it is obvious that no two lawbreakers, even though partners in crime, are equally responsible, equally evil or equally dangerous to society. One may be a good man, driven by hard necessity, the other vicious and depraved by preference.

When Arthur Train, author of "Mr. Tutt" was a public prosecutor in New York, he recognized the law's inability to achieve justice and often did his best to serve those he was required to prosecute. He regarded the jury as a means of correcting the law's faults.

But they cannot be corrected so easily. A group of experts, appointed for the purpose, should study the case of each convicted person and fix the penalty to fit the individual. One guilty of a minor offense should be locked up for life; another guilty of a major offense should be set free. It is not the crime that is judged, but the person who commits it.

Want to Know Why You're Constipated?

Would you give a million to shake off that dull, dopey, played-out feeling that often comes with common constipation? Then stop a minute and think.

What have you had to eat this week? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? Probably the reason you're constipated is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines which helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat some Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. This crunchy, toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains both the intestinal tonic vitamin B<sub>1</sub> and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. See if you don't get off your heels and on your toes! Kellogg's All-Bran is sold by every grocer.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"When I did well, I heard it never;
When I did ill, I heard it ever."

Once having undertaken responsibility for the economic and social well-being of the American people, the federal government will never again be able to lay that responsibility down. It is what Walter Lippman calls "the new imperative." Hoover began it and Roosevelt multiplied it. Landon would have added and subtracted but left the total large. In Roosevelt's way or Hoover's way or someone else's, it will continue now as long as popular government continues and the machine age runs. To recognize it and make its expressions as scientific, nonpolitical, efficient and fair as possible is common sense. And for the purposes of that common sense it is important that what has been done be examined without political bias or philosophical judgment. The "imperative" is upon us. It is here to stay. The present task is not to dispute it or divide about it but make the very best of it.

In this ideal we believe that a strict attention should go to the interviews by radio with state heads of different agencies which are being conducted by state directors of the National Emergency Council, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the State Employment Service, the National Youth Administration, Federal Housing Public Works—these and the other alphabet-straining agencies which have operated under the New Deal are being reported upon by their state heads.

In fairness, too, it should be recognized that in these latter days of the New Deal when old opposition has grown so harsh and new opposition is turned so sly, it is easier to hear of what has been done ill than of what has been done well. This week the claims of well-doing are being presented, and all good citizens owe them examination.

Some of the country's soundest businessmen are beginning to believe America has undergone a revolution in the years since 1929. A revolution mercifully bloodless but beyond recall. A revolution, which like most revolutions, has been accompanied by excesses, wastes, dishonesties, inefficiencies, follies and many misdirections and which will not leave the nation at peace within itself until it is both recognized and poised.

For the policing there is needed a nation-wide determination now upon the return to the rules of the game which were suspended in emergency. There is needed as nationwide a determination upon economy, efficiency and impartiality in administration of "the new imperative." And there is needed, most of all, a national urge for unanimity, for moving together in every possible way and for being civilized and good-tempered and fair when the moving must be apart. We, for one, believe the present spirit and temper of the American people give promise that such a policing of the "revolution" will be brought about. Recent events—the ones which indicate that neither Franklin Roosevelt nor anybody else is master of America now, and the others which indicate masters in most oppressive and dangerous denomination for Europe—incline this country to a realization of the comparative unimportance of its divisions and of the crowning importance of its things in common.

The National Emergency Council, under whose auspices the interviews are being conducted, is the co-ordinating agency of all federal activities within the state, and is charged with the responsibility of furnishing information to the public about the work of the several federal agencies.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

Dr. W. Hersey Davis, of Louisville, Ky., who has been preaching at Druid Hills Baptist church this week, taking the Gospel of John for the morning messages, and in the evenings preaching on great themes, took as his text Tuesday night, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish," interpreting these words of Jesus as warning the Pharisees against the fallacious position of looking at the other fellow's faults and closing their eyes to the inevitable consequences of their attitudes and acts.

"The law of cause and effect is so patently operative in the physical world that we do not have to argue with people that they must regard this principle if they want to be happy," said Dr. Davis, "but strangely enough, the very people who regard the principle of cause and effect in the physical universe so often close their eyes to the principle of cause and effect in the moral and spiritual realm."

"Which reminds me of an incident in my boyhood that vividly impressed itself on my mind. A bunch of us boys were shooting marbles one day. And in that bunch of boys were two or three fellows that owned an old red Irish setter. For some reason these boys turned against this faithful dog, and earlier that day they had carried her off in the woods and tied her to a tree and stoned her, they thought, to death. They came on back to the little town and were shooting marbles with the bunch of us.

"One of these boys was crouched to shoot—his legs wide apart—and this old red Irish setter dragged herself between his legs and tried to look up at him with one of her eyeballs hanging down in her blood, face. He fainted, and as he fell, he gasped, 'O God, have mercy!' We stood aghast at the horrible spectacle of physical suffering. That boy had been overtaken by his sin. And we understood that was exactly what had happened. We remembered that passage that says, 'Be sure your sin will find you out.' It was a fearful fulfillment of the principle of cause and effect in the moral realm."

And then Dr. Davis went on to point out the truth that every act of disobedience comes to harvest in certain and inescapable punishment—that the principle holds true in individual lives and in social relationships. Nations mistreat one another, and they have to suffer for it. He cited numerous instances to substantiate this fact. The only adequate and satisfying solution for the ills of the world is the recognition of this unchanging principle of cause effect in every relationship of life.

Boone Is Aiding Army in Search For McCandless, Off Regular Trail

By DENVER BARDWELL

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE, Alice Markley, one of a group of New Englanders who are emigrating to California, is saved by Jere Boone, a young trapper and buffalo hunter, from being swept overboard when the side-wheeler Kearsy hits a snag in the Missouri river. She admires the buckskin-clad plainsman but she shows her revulsion and avoids him after Peter McCandless, Indian trader who is outfitting the wagon train headed by Elias Hunt, refers to Jere as a squaw man. Peter dislikes him because he refuses to trade with him. Peter lands below Kansas City as lieutenant, directs the unloading of heavy boxes of Enfield rifles to be traded with the Indians for buffalo hides. The plan is for Indians to massacre the emigrants and get the rifles from the wagon's false bottoms. McCandless tells Stubby he's going with Hunt's wagon train to save a pretty girl. Jere accepts Hunt's invitation to act as guide to be near Alice but Peter says he's engaged Tom Hendon, whom Jere knows to be a renegade. Hunt says Jere may go along but Stubby buys up options on all available wagons. The wife of one of Hunt's men dies, he wants to return east and Jere buys his wagon but his start is delayed by a fake message from Stubby and men named Jenks and Zee rob him and hold him bound in an old log cabin. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XVI.
Boone described Elias Hunt's wagon train, told him he was hurrying to overtake it. The lieutenant was emphatic in his declaration that no such emigrant train had passed. A light of comprehension flashed into Jere Boone's dark eyes.

"Lieutenant, how long have you and your men been posted here?" he asked.

"Three days," the officer explained quickly.

At sundown he came upon two dozen wagons bunched for the night by their emigrant owners at a creek crossing. In spite of his urgent desire to drive farther before camping, he decided to remain where he was sure of company. Roving bands of straggler Indians frequently watched the emigrant trails along here and made easy prey of isolated wagons, though they never attacked larger groups this near the border and army posts.

At daylight he drove away from his new friends. During the day he kept a sharp lookout southward hoping to see the Hunt wagon train crawling across the country there to re-enter the beaten trail. In midafternoon he turned onto the northward trail to the Kansas river.

Dusk was throwing its gray shadows along the banks of the Kansas when the tired mules gratefully obeyed Jere's "Whoa!" at the goal of the forced drive, the Kansas crossing. The lieutenant and his soldiers were in camp there. The young officer told Boone that they had reached the crossing after dark the previous night and that only two small wagon trains had crossed since then. The much-used campground was deserted except for the soldiers and Boone.

"If McCandless and his emigrants haven't passed by noon tomorrow," the lieutenant promised Boone, "I'll detail half my men to scout the country for them. They can't get by us."

Boone had finished his breakfast the next morning by the time the sergeant routed his men out of their blankets. At the first peep of the bright red sun's rim dancing on the eastern horizon he threw the saddle on his Shawnee pony, preparing to ride out to scout for the missing wagon train. When he asked the leather-visaged old sergeant if he would look out for his mules and wagon until his return, the sergeant shook his head, looked at Boone with a strange expression of either contempt or suspicion, and said:

"You sure don't know nothin' 'bout army regulations, son. The lieutenant is rousin' out o' his tent yonder. Go ask him."

Lieutenant McDonald Brown came out of his tent just then and started washing his face and hands in a pan of water which an orderly had placed on a cottonwood stump for him. He wore only pants and undershirt. Boone approached him and made his request.

Lieutenant Brown raised up and looked at the plainsman from under eyelashes that dripped water. He answered Boone's request firmly:

"I can't allow that, Boone. I believe every word of your story, but don't do anything to make me doubt it. If you ride away now and we later find the McCandless wagons have no contraband, how are we to know you didn't warn them to cache it somewhere? You will stay here until they arrive." Boone did not like peremptory orders, especially from a man two or three years his junior in years and infinitely more in border experience, but he controlled his exasperation.

"I can see your point, Lieutenant," he said, but McCandless has got to be scout ahead. They will spy you here before the wagons are anywhere close. When McCandless learns you're waiting, he'll take the pilgrims on across country to some upper ford. Send some men along with me, but let me go."

Lieutenant Brown slowly and meticulously dried his face and hands on a clean towel before he answered. He was still young enough to like the exercise of authority and feel his importance. "I've already decided to send out scout by noon if the wagons don't appear," he said with finality. "Stick around until then, Boone."

Jere left his pony saddled and worked for an hour in reloading and putting fresh caps on his two revolvers, oiling and polishing them and the two new Enfield rifles he had bought for himself and Sanderson. His keen eyes frequently swept along the line of hills a half mile distant which rimmed the river bottoms on the south.

After the soldiers had attended to their horses and breakfasted, they came to where Boone sat working in the shade of his wagon. Each man wore a holstered cap-and-ball revolver like those Boone carried, a relatively new invention of Colonel Samuel Colt, but the Army Ordnance Department had not yet gotten around to furnishing the extraordinarily effective new breechloading Enfield cartridge rifles. The soldiers admired Boone's two rifles, passed them from hand to hand, hefting and aiming them, grumbling about their out-moded muzzle-loaders.

"If 'nough o' the Injuns git these here new guns," the grizzled old sergeant declared, "they kin run the army pluck back across the Mississippi and—"

"Hey, look!" Boone yelled. He snatched a rifle and started toward his saddled pony while he pointed toward the rim of southern hills. "Somebody scouting us out—gone now—over them hills! Come on, some of you fellers! Hop your horses!"

Lieutenant Brown was in front of his tent, shaving. He straightened up and shouted at Boone, but the latter was in the saddle and gone so quickly that even the seasoned old sergeant stood looking after him, flabbergasted. Some of the soldiers moved toward their horses, ready for orders. Jere Boone didn't give them a backward glance.

While his Shawnee pony leveled out into a streaking run, he kept his gaze upon the horizon, line above the hills where he had caught a fleeting glimpse of a man's head and shoulders. From the manner of that man's posture and movement, he was sure that the fellow was mounted.

He saw no other moving object until he had climbed the rutted trail up to the top of the hills. Then, nearly a mile away, along a little uneven ridge off to the left of the emigrant trail, he saw a horse and riding speeding southward as if an Indian war party were in pursuit. Up-jutting bluffs by the creek a little farther along hid the fleeing rider. Boone kept his pony on the trail, slowed him to an easier lope and fixed his gaze on the open prairie beyond the creek. He knew the little stream paralleled the trail for three miles to where it came in a sharp bend from the west, cutting across the trail.

Boone had little doubt as to who the "fastest rider" was. As an experienced plainsman, accustomed to noting the most insignificant characteristics of men's riding habits, he could recognize a known rider's peculiar mannerisms in the saddle as far as he could distinguish the outlines of rider from the animal under him. He had seen Tom Hendon flailing his much-abused mounts on other occasions and this rider going ahead of him displayed the identifying gestures of the squaw man.

WAR USED TOO LONG AS ALIBI BY SOUTH, EDITOR DECLARES

'Held Responsible for Every Evil,' Jonathan Daniels Tells Librarians.

The War Between the States was used too long by the south as an alibi for a lack of progress, Jonathan Daniels, of Raleigh, N. C., newspaper editor and author, said in an address here last night before the Southeastern Library Association.

Speaking at a "Book Fair" dinner which closed the association's convention program for the day, Mr. Daniels declared that the war had been held responsible "not only for the damage that the war had done but also for every evil existent afterward."

"The war was made to cut like a sword between every stupid act and painful consequence," he asserted. "It acquitted the southern of every failure, and set him up in the world as a man freed of every fault. Poverty, ignorance, disease and foolishness were all credited to the conflict. 'Nobody could clearly charge the southern with the consequences of slavery, with the results of the long, careless destruction of his soil, or any of the cumulative results of any community stupidity or mistakes which existed in the south as elsewhere before 1861.'"

Other speakers heard on yesterday's program included Ralph M. Dunbar, director of the library service division of the United States Office of Education; L. R. Wilson, of the University of Chicago Library school; Alfred H. Rawlinson, of the Arkansas Library Commission; Little Rock; Harold Brigham, of the Louisville, Ky., free public library; Mary U. Rothrock, supervisor of the TVA library service, and Mae Graham, of the department of library science, William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va.

Charles H. Stone, president of the association, presided at the dinner last night. Guest authors introduced included Mrs. Elvira Garner, Mrs. Christine Givan, Fieril Hess, Rose B. Knox, Munro Leaf, Evelyn Hanna, Daniel Whitehead Hickey, Harry Lee, Minnie Hite Moody and Anderson Scruggs.

3 Flying Heroes Will Be Honored As 'Men With Wings' Opens at Fox

Rivers To Make Them Colonels; at Other Theaters: 'Wide Open Faces,' 'Rialto,' 'Dracula,' 'Frankenstein,' 'Paramount,' 'The Citadel,' 'Loew's,' 'Painted Desert,' 'Capitol.'

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

The three aviators whose heroic efforts saved 14 lives when the Eastern Air Lines plane caught fire and crashed near Montgomery last week will be honored tonight when Governor Rivers makes them honorary colonels on his staff.

In addition, Lucas & Jenkins will present plaques to Pilot Dave Hissong, Co-Pilot C. R. Russell and Stewart Frank Gibbs, commending their bravery. The presentations will be made at 9 o'clock tonight from the stage of the Fox theater, where "Men With Wings" is opening today in southern premiere.

The aviators will arrive at noon today from New York for the ceremonies tonight. Downing Musgrove, secretary to the Governor, will act for Rivers in making the air heroes honorary colonels.

"Men With Wings" is a cavalcade of the air which tells the history of aviation from the first flight of the Wright brothers through Howard Hughes' race around the world. Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland and Louise Campbell have the starring roles. "Men With Wings" is a double bill. The Rialto is opening today with "Wide Open Faces," Joe Brown's latest, and the Paramount is playing the super thriller, "Dracula," and "Frankenstein," in a double bill.

"The Citadel" opened yesterday at Loew's, starring Rosalind Russell and Robert Donat. The Capitol opens Sunday with George O'Brien in the western "Painted Desert."

"WIDE OPEN FACES"

OPENS AT RIALTO

Joe E. Brown opens today at the Rialto, theater in "Wide Open Faces."

This time Joe is a soda jerker, employed in a luncheonette that is a popular luncheon stop for passenger busses. There is in the neighborhood an old, deserted hotel. The girl inherits the place and reopens it, but things go badly with them, until the underworld hears a rumor that a noted bank robber had used the old place to hide his loot. The crooks and their molls flock to the neighborhood and Joe directs them all to the hotel, thinking they are innocent tourists and thus hoping to help the girl.

In the cast are Allison Skipworth, Lucien Littlefield, Jane Wyman, Barbara Pepper, Alan Baxter and Berton Churchill.

HORROR FILMS

AT PARAMOUNT

"Dracula" and "Frankenstein," the double horror show of all time, starts today at the Paramount theater.

It isn't a show for the weak-hearted or weak-minded, but if you like mystery, horrifying scenes, and characters, heart-chilling drama and atmosphere that goes toward making the greatest double horrifying feature of the century, we dare you to see both of them together.

It is not one alone, but two super shockers with "Frankenstein," the man-made monster, starring Boris Karloff, and "Dracula," the blood-sucking fiend of fiction, starring Bela Lugosi.

Either of these pictures will thrill and chill you and together you are very likely to be horrified—but there is one thing certain—you will be entertained as never before when you see them together, Manager Tommy Read says.

Sergeant Sam Rittenberg Had Been Transferred Here Only Tuesday.

Sergeant Sam Rittenberg, transferred here Tuesday as a national guard instructor, plunged eight stories to his death early yesterday from the eighth floor of a building at 145 Luckie street, police reported.

Investigators said a note found in his pocket indicated he had committed suicide. An inquest has been ordered for 11 o'clock this morning at the funeral home of J. Austin Dillon.

Officials at national guard headquarters said Rittenberg had recently been discharged from the Walter Reed General Hospital at Washington, D. C., where he had been undergoing observation and treatment, and that he had reported for duty Wednesday morning.

According to police reports, Rittenberg had been dead several hours when his body was discovered, fully clothed. More than $300 and a requesting burial in a national cemetery was found in his pockets.

Three Smyrna Churches Condemn Mob Action as 'Disgusting Affair'

Baptist, Presbyterian and Methodist Congregations Express Hope Courts Will Mete Punishment to Those Who Incited Actions of Rioters.

Mob violence in Smyrna following the murder of an aged Cobb county citizen and his daughter has been condemned in a resolution adopted by three churches in Smyrna.

Characterizing the demonstration "a most disgraceful, disgusting and deplorable affair," the resolution explains "the main body of citizens of Smyrna did not foment nor aid the mob, but that on the other hand was very much opposed to it."

The resolution was adopted by the Smyrna Baptist, Presbyterian and Methodist churches. The Smyrna occurrence followed discovery of the battered bodies of George W. Camp and his daughter, Mrs. Christine Camp Pauls. Willie Russell, a negro, was arrested in connection with the deaths and now awaits trial.

"The whole affair was uncalled for and unwarranted," the resolution declares. "Many of our local citizens have suffered financial loss. Many travelers passing through Smyrna were insulted and some had their cars damaged. All of us, and the city of Smyrna, have lost prestige and standing in the eyes of the world because of the affair. . . .

"The mob consisted very large-

CHAMBERLAIN WINS BY-ELECTION TEST

Conservative Majority in District Cut From Previous Poll, However.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A member of Prime Minister Chamberlain's conservative party today won the first parliamentary by-election since the four-power accord.

The winner, Quentin Hogg, with 15,797 votes, polled a majority only half as large as the conservatives piled up in the Oxford district in the 1935 election.

Voting was heavier than in the previous election, indicating interest aroused by the campaign based principally on Chamberlain's foreign policy.

Joan Blondell Complains of Cost Of Babies --- $100,000 F. O. B.

Each Came to That, Actress Says; Mate More Philosophical.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—(UP) Joan Blondell, wife of Dick Powell, reported today that her two babies cost her $100,000 each, F. O. B., Cedars of Lebanon hospital.

And that probably explains why there are so few babies in Hollywood. You can almost count the children of the stars on your fingers. They cost too much—like steam yachts and diamond tiaras and castles in the Alps.

The Beneficiaries. A large proportion of the delivered price of Norman Scott Powell, 4, and Ellen Fowell, three months, went to physicians. Some went to the hospital, baby clothes makers, and others, while another big percentage of that $100,000 per each went into wages Miss Acme Photo.

JOAN BLONDELL AND SON, NORMAN.

Blondell lost during her confinement.

Her children are worth whatever they cost—and more—she said, but she still wishes the folks with whom movie actors have to deal would have a heart.

"For instance," she said, "my sister, Gloria, had to have an appendicitis operation in New York. She went to the best of physicians and she had the best of service and it cost her $250, $3,500 Appendix.

"Then I get appendicitis and what does it cost me? It almost makes me faint to think about it. My appendicitis operation cost me $3,500.

"Then I had to have some work done on my teeth. It wasn't much, but the bill would make you think I have a mouth full of diamonds and platinum. My dental work cost $2,200.

"And its that way everywhere you go. Just because you're in the movies everything costs more. Why, when we used to live in town it cost us $75 a week just to walk into our front door. And that's no exaggeration. There were so many poor people and people with causes and needy relatives waiting for us that we never got by a week for any less."

Miss Blondell told of her financial troubles in the living room of her new home. Powell, sitting near by, winding up movie film he had taken of his babies, listened for a while and chimed in: "But movie acting still is better than driving a truck."

His wife agreed to that, all right, except that she thought maybe a truck driver had fewer worries. Certainly, if his wife presented him with a baby, he didn't have to shell out any $100,000.

FISHING PACT TALKS DELAYED BY FLORIDA

Agriculture Commissioner Columbus Roberts said yesterday he was advised R. L. Dowling, Florida supervisor of conservation, would be unable to attend a scheduled hearing in Savannah Saturday for discussion of the Georgia-Florida disagreement over fishing licenses.

Governor Rivers had arranged to attend the hearing. Dowling sought an extension due to other business. Georgia and Florida have been seeking a reciprocal agreement on fishing boat licenses for several months.

MY DAY Interesting Projects Visited in Birmingham

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—As we left the station yesterday morning in Cincinnati, my eye fell on one of the housing projects which I had seen partly finished on a former visit. I was leaning out to look at it when the taxi driver said: "That's one of the government housing projects, and I live there." I promptly asked how he liked it, and he responded that it was very satisfactory.

One of the first things I was taken to see this morning in Birmingham was another housing project, which I had seen just beginning when I was here before. In many of the southern cities, the worst housing is usually occupied by the negro population, and so I was glad to find that this project was for colored people and already practically filled.

We asked a woman who came out into her yard if we might see her house. She let us in, and it seemed to me well planned and well kept. I still disagree with the housing authorities on the question of closets without doors. I know one can build more cheaply that way, but one of the reasons for having a closet is to put things in it, which you do not want out in the room, and which you want to keep away from dust and dirt.

We paid a brief visit to the Birmingham-Southern College, took a drive up a hill from which we had a most comprehensive view of the city, and visited a WPA project where work of various kinds was being done. They have been fortunate in finding an old factory which is easy to keep clean and has plenty of light and air. The sewing rooms and the mattress-making were in one building. On this project, saw what ingenuity can accomplish. Lately no mattress ticking has been forthcoming from their sponsors, so since they have received a great number of old army coats, these have been ripped, washed, and sewed together to make really very serviceable mattresses.

The weaving is exceptionally good. I saw a woven dress with some block printing as decoration, and various couch throws and pieces of material, which made me feel that these women would be able to earn their own livings before long.

Under the sponsorship of the public schools, a bookbinding project has been going on which has put a great many books into use. Men and women were working together on a project for renovating furniture, which seemed to me most interesting. They were making over old iceboxes to serve as cabinets. Rooms which they set up with kitchen, bedroom and sitting room furniture, would have done credit to a department store.

There is a big gathering of Democratic women here today, and it has drawn a number of important Democrats to Birmingham. I was happy to be able to greet them all at luncheon.

The Proper Diet and Exercise Can Transform Ugly Duckling

By Ida Jean Kain.

This is a true story that sounds like a fairy tale. . . the story of an ugly duckling who turned into a glamorous girl. Our heroine is Kallie Foutz, of Salt Lake City, and a granddaughter of Brigham Young, who she said this—went west to change the map while she came east to have her map changed!

You can see how it happened that Kallie Foutz wrote the winning letter in a national contest, sponsored by Mademoiselle Magazine and a New York department store, to find the girl in America most in need of being made over. Besides, she sent along a picture. Every girl and woman is interested in hearing how this transformation was worked, but it is of special interest to the girl who is too thin. The beauty authorities who took Kallie in hand found her considerably underweight. Her figure was lumpy. Her posture was poor. Her hair was lifeless from overbleaching and lack of care. Her skin was bad.

Here had to be a health program, quite as much as a beauty program, and one of the first things done for Kallie was to systematize her entire day, giving proper importance to adequate exercise and rest, a nourishing diet and plenty of sleep. The next thing was for the circulation—a combination of massage and stretching exercises.

The stimulation of the circulation gave her a normal appetite and aided in the assimilation of the nourishing foods essential to a weight gain. In the morning she had fruit with cream, eggs and toast, and a glass of milk, one-third cream. In the middle of the morning she took another glass of milk with one-third cream. For luncheon there was always a creamed dish of some kind, and at 5 o'clock in the afternoon a malted or chocolate drink.

Kallie had no appetite to begin with and taking extra calories was quite a task, but I can assure you there is nothing wrong with that young lady's appetite now—I had lunch with her!

Outdoor exercise in the form of leisurely walks not only aided the assimilation of the extra food, but also enabled her to sleep nine hours every night. In addition, she rested each day at noon and again before dinner. If you are trying to build up your weight and vitality, into a glamorous girl, a valuable part of your program.

Our heroine's hair was the particular despair of the beauty experts. It was brushed and brushed and brushed, and her scalp was massaged, and given hot oil treatments to bring back the lift. In two weeks it looked like a different head of hair.

And four weeks later you would not have recognized Kallie for the same girl who walked into Grand Central station. Her vitality had improved to such a degree that her walk had a nice spring to it, her posture was naturally erect. She had also learned that good posture is less tiring.

Of course, this transformation has altered her entire outlook on life. She has even changed her name from Kallie to Karol—and I predict that it won't be long before she changes her last name! The moral of our story is that while Karol was given a great deal of expert assistance, any girl can do many of these things for herself, and if she does she won't be an ugly duckling.

Five-Way Basic Dress by Barbara Bell

As the small sketches show, you can wear 1597-B with or without the sash. Or you can turn back the collar and face the points like revers, finish the dress with a round tailored collar, or wear it with long collar and girle-sash. And any one of those five ways is extremely smart. The basic lines are so good that you will want it all ways! The gathered bodice, high-waisted sleeves, lifted waistline and slim skirt give you a graceful lissome silhouette indeed!

This design is a good design for either silk or wool—flat crepe, satin, challis or cashmere are materials in which it makes up beautifully. It's a very easy design to work with. The detailed sew chart tells you just what to do.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1597-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 (32) requires 3 7-8 yards of 39-inch material, with short sleeves; 4 1-8 yards with long sleeves. Specific requirements for sash, collars and facing, appear on your pattern.

Single Two-Suit Against One Opponent

By Harold Sharpsteen.

As a general rule in planning to project a single two-suit squeeze against one opponent, where two threat suits are divided. . . one threat suit in dummy-hand and the other in declarer's closed hand. . . the squeeze lead must always be made from the hand containing the one-card threat, opposite the final position entry.

South's Diamond 7, the squeeze-lead card, is opposite the final entry. . . North's Spade Ace. With-out this entry, declarer would be unable to take advantage of the same material. The bed-spread is white dotted Swiss too, made with a full wide flounce—as a matter of fact Naomi has two spreads so they can go in the wash often and be kept crisp and fresh.

EITHER HAND SQUEEZES.
However, when a three-or-more-card threat suit is divided between hands of declarer and dummy, where entries are available to either hand, the squeeze-lead card may be in either hand. Sometimes it appears in dummy's visible hand, yet defenders are helpless to prevent the squeeze.

WEST HELPLESS.
When dummy's squeeze-lead card, the Heart 6, is led, South is able to discard the "idle" Diamond 2 without disturbing cards in the three-or-more-card threat suit. . . spades. . . divided between the two hands. Nevertheless, West is squeezed.

West is likewise helpless with the squeeze lead originating in declarer's closed hand.

Leave Decision To Your Physician

By Dr. William Brady.

In certain cases of overweight, or rather say oversize south of the equator, the fat accumulates mainly about the hips and thighs, and the face may be positively gaunt. Intelligent moderate regulation of the diet—sometimes the patient finds it hard to consume all the food the physician prescribes—together with endocrine treatment, that is, administration of pituitary hormone by the physician, will bring about a redistribution of the fat. In some cases judicious use of thyroid hormone alone or with pituitary, gives better results—but that is a problem for the physician to consider in each individual case.

Aside from that, I know of no method or means of causing either a deposit of fat or flesh in a particular place or removing fat or flesh from one portion of the body without affecting the fat or flesh elsewhere. But then, I don't believe in Santa Claus any more either. If you are susceptible to persuasion there are plenty of charlatans who are willing to show you, at your expense, that they can bake, massage, burn, dissolve, break down or otherwise get the fat off or on wherever you want it off or on. I'm telling you, without obligation on your part, that it can't be done. You pay your money and takes your choice.

But now we come a-runnin' with good news for the Slim Jims and the Skinny "innies. Remember the insulin method of giving weight which we suggested here some time ago? Well, that proved highly satisfactory in a few instances, moderately effective in more, disappointing in most cases, I gather from the tone of the reports that trickled in from various parts of the country.

But here is the good word, and I hope 10,000 skinny readers will make a note of, and begin the treatment without delay.

One who has been underweight for years, of low vitality or vite, with poor appetite, nervousness, rapid pulse rate, will generally improve in every respect if he or she supplements the regular diet with not less than 1,000 international units of vitamin B, in the form of vitamin B complex tablets (each tablet contains 250 units of vitamin B) or vitamin B complex syrup (each teaspoonful contains 150 units of vitamin B) or not less than six or eight ounces of wheat germ daily or not less than four or five ounces of dried brewers yeast daily. Until the appetite improves perhaps the vitamin B complex syrup is the easiest to take. But remember, vitamin B complex is FOOD, not medicine, and you would not expect to benefit much from food unless you took it every day in the time, would you?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Left-Handed.

I do not agree with you. I am left-handed. All machines are made for right-handed people. For instance, I can't use a simple potato parer because I am left-handed. So I say, if you have a left-handed child, teach him to write and do other things only with the right hand. It will save the child a handicap through life. (K. S.)

Answer—Perhaps so, if the child is destined to be a robot. If the child has the promise of any special talent or intellectual attainment, then do not interfere with natural left-handedness—if you do, you may handicap the child throughout life. If forced right-handedness occurs in early childhood speed impediment is a like consequence. About one in every 25 persons is naturally left-handed. About one in every 25 potato parers, etc., might be made for left-handed users. In the manufacture of shoes 50 per cent of the entire output is designed for the left foot. The conventional object—left-handed writing is nothing but prejudice—telics of the old martinet schoolmaster. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

A Fireplace in Your Bedroom

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin.

Swiss too with the top (under plate glass) of toilet.

Spanking Clean.
The furniture is mahogany, very simple colonial, and includes a low poster bed, a chest of drawers, and a small sewing table. The rug was a problem. Naomi didn't want to spend much money and she didn't want the floor covering to be too important. For the present she's using white rag wash rugs that go into the washer so they can be kept spanking clean. But eventually she's hoping to have a carpet of a soft red red.

The fireplace things, andirons and so on, are brass kept bright and shining and the lamps are crystal with white and blue toilet shades. Altogether it's as bright and gay a room as I've seen in many a moon. And just the sort of a room that Naomi, who is a perfect ash blond, looks nicest in.

Nothing Can Be Gained By Clandestine Affair

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

When I was very young I married a man much older than I. Naturally I believed I loved him but very soon after our marriage he became cold and abusive, wasn't willing for me to have any friends or go anywhere. I am only 32 now and have lovely children, 15 and 13, and should be leading a happy life. Five years ago I met a man who seemed to understand the fix I was in because he was married to a cold and nagging wife and I thought we could be contented just loving each other and seeing each other when we could. But this cheating is killing me. I have been in a torment and don't know which way to turn. The man's wife will not free him and he is tied hand and foot as I am. Surely there is some solution of such a problem for two people who love each other. Not a soul but the two of us knows of our affair.

WRETCHED.

ANSWER:

Wouldn't it be fine if I could recommend that you tell your husband that you were through. demand that he give you full support for yourself and the children and leave you free to live and love as you choose; and on top of that assure you that all would be well! Instead I must tell you that you should cut loose from this married man, turn in and try to woo your husband into a different attitude toward you, set your children a good example, find pleasure in them which you cannot now find.

Yes, 32 is young and you should be leading a happy life and making a happy life for your family, and you can yet do this, if you will get your mind off love for the moment and think about life as it really is. Not a perennial picnic, lunch basket packed and handed to you each morning as you start out on the lark—not this but rather a hard school where the discipline requires giving up what we want sometimes for the benefit of those we love and are bound to, a school where we must play fair or take the consequences.

Let me tell you something, there's nothing in the world more slippery than a married man who's carrying on a clandestine affair with a married woman. Not even an eel. He can hide behind his wife's skirts on the score of divorce and he has no responsibility, financial or otherwise, for another man's wife and so he can play around to his heart's content without fear of being trapped.

In solving your problem you can mark it down that when a man says "My wife won't let me," one of two things is definitely true. Either he's afraid cat ("conscience doth make cowards of us all") and dares not tell his wife that he wants a divorce, or he actually doesn't want it; but is contented to let matters remain in status quo. In rare instances, perhaps, a wife does refuse to let her grip on her meal-ticket man but the proof that such is not the case with the man you are in the fact that he has not told his wife what's in the air.

Isn't it strange that a woman will hazard her home, her position and her children's security for the thrill of an extra mural affair that promises her nothing for the future and gives her more pain than pleasure in the present? And pitiable, too, for she doesn't realize that if she did her duty at home the satisfaction in this alone would be sweeter than stolen kisses.

A Tour of the Movie Sets With Hollywood Columnist

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—"The Great Man Votes." . . . John Barrymore is the star—in the movie—and on the set. John is wearing a dirty dressing gown and powdering his legs from which the pajamas have just been removed. He plays an ex-college professor gone to the dogs via a bottle.

As usual, the blackboard is very much in evidence. (How are you going to do that play in New York, John, if you can't remember a few lines at a time?) But it is a lesson in acting to watch Barrymore speak his dialogue with one eye on the blackboard, which, of course, is beyond the camera range. He says a few words, pauses, glances round the room, picks up the blackboard and is back into his scene as though the pause were part of it. What an actor!

Little Virginia Weidler has to push Pappy Barrymore into a chair. He shows her the best way to do it. John is that strange anomaly among movie-ites. He likes acting with children and actually costs them their spotlight. (How do you like that, Mr. W. C. Fields?) . . . Producer Cliff Reid is wildly excited over his star and story. "It's as good as 'The Informer,'" says Cliff, who produced it. "And as cheap—$250,000—which, by the way, it is, is very cheap" for Hollywood.

"The Three Musketeers."

"Will you come into my trailer?" said the spider to the fly—I mean Harry Ritz, to your reporter. The craziest of the Ritz brothers is positively handsome in his blond, wavy wig and dashing musketeer ensemble. "Wait until Rob-ert Taylor sees me. He'll giggle and continue, 'I want you to hear some of our numbers.'"

I have never visited Mr. Ritz on the set.

A careful inspection of the house for fire hazards now may save a costly blaze some cold winter night.

It is estimated that 200,000 refugees from farms in the western "dust bowl" have migrated to California in search of a livelihood.

By Sally Forth.

SEVERAL out-of-town members of the Southeastern Library Association here for the organization's convention will remain through the week end. The book dinner this evening at the Biltmore hotel will climax the convention's program, but the Atlanta Historical Society's old-time fashion parade tomorrow evening is an added attraction for the visitors.

Mrs. Mark Temple and Miss Weldon Sibley, of Marietta, and Miss Ola Wyeth, of Savannah, will be prominent figures in library circles taking part in the fashion show featuring "Fashions of Yesterday." Emma Katherine Anderson is another Marietta woman who will participate in the parade.

Mrs. Temple, you know, is one of Georgia's most brilliant women and, in addition to being the author of "The First Hundred Years," she is chairman of the board of the Clarke Library in Marietta and chairman of the Georgia Library Commission.

In tomorrow evening's fashion revue she will wear her mother's wedding gown, worn by the former Miss Alice Blackwell when she became the bride of the late Judge George F. Gober on June 21, 1881.

The dress is made of heavy lustrous silk and is fashioned with a tight-fitting bodice buttoned to the neckline. It has an over-draped hoop skirt with a fancy bustle trimmed in silk chenille fringe.

Mrs. Temple will also wear her mother's gold earrings and wedding ring.

That gracious "grande dame" of Savannah, Mrs. Peter Meldrim, will be impersonated by Ola

Wyeth, who is head of the public library in Savannah.

Emma Katharine Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Anderson, of Marietta, will represent her great-grandfather's sister, Rhoda Narcissi Montgomery, and will wear gray taffeta trimmed in pink flowers and ribbons.

Although Weldon Sibley will no parade, she will wear a becoming colonial costume and will assist in serving at the reception after the parade. She is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Samuel H. Sibley, of Marietta.

In lieu of the current meeting here of the library group and the historical society's party, it is appropriate to mention that Mrs. Temple was instrumental in joining the Cobb County Historical Society organized. Through Mrs. Temple's efforts, a marker was recently placed on the site of the famous Georgia Military Academy in Marietta, which played an important part in Georgia's educational history.

Mrs. Temple's father, the late Judge George F. Gober, of Marietta, was one of the four life members of the board of trustees of the Clarke Library in Marietta, which recently celebrated its forty-fifth birthday. It is interesting to know that Judge Gober was named president of the first board of the Clarke Library, of which his daughter, Mrs. Temple, is now chairman. The library, you know, is modeled after the reading room of the British Museum, but of course on a far smaller scale.

MEMBERS of the Dutch Club recently enjoyed a huge joke at the expense of Whitley Butner.

Beverly DuBose, Bobby Crawford, Charles Person, Hugh Lester and Whitley piled into the latter's new car one evening and called on Helen Jones.

The car was the subject of much discussion and Whitley's pride in it was unbecoming. In fact, it was so prominent in the conversation that Bobby Crawford was inspired with the mischievous idea of "doing away with it."

After confiding his plans to his companions, he engaged Whitley and Helen in a heated conversation to detract their attention from the "dirty work." In the meantime, his cronies were "un-braking" the car and parking it down the street!

Shortly after Whitley and Bobby said their "adieu," and left their companions at Helen's home with the promise to return for them later.

Whitley's reaction to the missing car resembled a "punctured balloon." He just couldn't believe it! Bobby was very patient and sympathetic with him, and conscientiously assisted him in the search for it. According to him, Whitley was a "mere shadow of his former self" when they finally located the car.

But for another mischievous idea the story would end here, but after completing their calls, the pair decided that Whitley should not be the only persecuted member. After this decision, they phoned their cronies at Helen's, and informed them that they must walk to the intersection of Peachtree Battle avenue and Habersham road, because the car was out of gas.

Feeling amused over their prank, the two then drove to the appointed meeting place, but they had forgotten that fate, too, can play tricks—

Just as they reached the designated spot, they really ran out of gas.

Mrs. Mary S. Russell Re-elected President of Georgia W. C. T. U.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Re-election of Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, of Atlanta, as president, the adoption of resolutions and the selection of Albany as the 1939 convention city highlighted yesterday's program of the 55th annual convention of the Georgia Woman's Temperance Union now in convention here.

All present officers were re-elected and will serve with Mrs. Russell for the coming year. They are Mesdames Robert McDougall, of Atlanta, vice president; R. L. Miller, of Waynesboro, corresponding secretary; Robert Trav- elute, of Moultrie, recording secretary; and Wilbur Brown, of Griffin, treasurer.

Resolution highlights included total abstinence from alcohol, the call to the 121 dry counties of Georgia to send dry representatives to the next legislature; state government control, reaffirming the conviction that prohibition is the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic; the continued expansion of the educational program and the study of the structure of government and citizens' duty, and the call upon Christians throughout the world to pray that world conflict may be avoided and that all differences may be adjusted by adherence to the principles of the Prince of Peace.

Mrs. Marvin Williams was chairman of the resolutions committee presenting the slate to the convention. Last night at the closing session of the convention, all sessions of which have been held at the Wesley Memorial church, Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, an honorary president of the W. C. T. U. as principal speaker, spoke on "Star Beams."

Mrs. Armor said: "When the 18th amendment was repealed, the National W. C. T. U. did not surrender nor retreat. They resolved that they would celebrate the 100th anniversary of the birth of their leader, the founder of the world's W. C. T. U., Frances E. Willard, by putting on a great educational campaign to raise a million dollars for education in five directions: Spiritual, alcohol, character, citizenship and peace. Since this centenary celebration which will go on all through this year is a five-pointed program, they chose for its emblem a gold star, known in W. C. T. U. circles as the centenary star. Georgia's quota of the million dollars was $14,000. We have completed our quota and become a gold star state."

"Our fight is for a clear brain, the holiest fight this side of the throne of God. Just when science has proved so clearly that alcohol even in very small doses is detrimental to the welfare of man, physically, mentally and spiritually, science has also provided us with the most wonderful means of teaching the truth. Thousands are teachable, and we propose to reach them by every modern scientific means with the truth about alcohol, what it is and what it does. The great tragedy of drink is that it takes such a small quantity of this insidious drug to change and degrade personality. By blunting the power of discrimination, by blurring self-critical judgment, by breaking down self-control and deadening conscience and by liberating instinctive and animal desires alcohol is the enemy of true personality. Its constant and inevitable tendency is toward the aethronement of all that is highest and best in human life. Our work is based upon and receives its dynamic from that which is forever central to Christian life and ethics, the power and glory of self-sacrifice."

Another important speaker on the convention program was John W. Vincent, special agent in charge of FBI of the United States Department of Justice. He spoke on "America's Crime Challenge" and said in part:

"The majority of young people engaged in crime in this country are below the voting age. During the last few years there has been an increasing number of criminals in our country. Their actual cost in dollars and cents to the country is far too much. If this country had more organizations like the W. C. T. U. to fight the liquor traffic there would, I feel, be a decline in the crime of this nation."

Last night's program opened with a Scripture reading by Dr. Stuart Oglesby, with an invocation by Dr. C. R. Stauffer, and the benediction by Rev. Marvin Green. Youth group secretaries were introduced and medal contest speakers included Rudel Blackmarr, Walter Griswold, and Jeannette McNeel. A musical program was given by Miss Suzanne Davis, of Baltimore, Md., and a moving picture, "The Pay Off," was presented.

PROGRESS NOTED IN CHEST CAMPAIGN

Three Divisions, Working in Advance, Report Gains to Leaders.

Three divisions of the Community Chest campaign, which are working in advance of the formal opening of the drive November 2, reported Thursday that progress indicated definite gains.

J. C. Malone, chairman of the advance division, Harry Sommers, chairman of the large firms division, and W. C. Harris, head of the small firms division, have been working with their lieutenants for several days.

Mr. Harris said a majority of the work of his division would be completed before the formal campaign begins.

Both other leaders are driving toward the same goal.

The formal campaign period, from November 2 to 12, will be devoted largely to the work of the men's central division under Charlie Yates and the women's central division, headed by Mrs. J. N. McEachern. These two sections have more than 500 individual workers on 32 teams.

Organized into 12 sections for an active part in the campaign was worked out Thursday. Decatur will conduct its campaign with a large force of workers, and teams have been recruited for work in Buckhead, East Point, College Park and Hapeville.

The DeKalb County Community Chest campaign, a division of the Atlanta Community Chest, will be opened officially with a breakfast Thursday morning in the Candler hotel, Decatur. Dr. J. S. Guy, general chairman of the DeKalb division, announced yesterday.

Approximately 100 workers from 33 zones in the county are expected to attend the meeting, at which Bobby Jones, general chairman of the Atlanta drive, will speak. The breakfast will be held from 7 until 8 o'clock.

Working directly under Dr. Guy in the DeKalb campaign is Mrs. Boyd Carles, who is serving as directing secretary. The committee co-operating with them include Claude Blount, Dr. J. R. McGinnis, W. H. Williams, Hugh Burgess, R. C. Cunningham, Ben Forkner and Charles D. McKinney.

Varnish of the fifth century C. was made out of oil of cedar and turpentine, and this varnish and gummy cases is still in good condition.

Religion Is Okay --- But So Is Sleep

CLEVELAND, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Cleveland clergymen are going to put radio station WGAR's listeners to bed with a prayer. Manager John Patt said today he feels the world needs prayer. Since pastors normally are asleep at 1 a. m., when the station "signs off," Patt said they would record their supplications at more normal hours.

The transmissions, starting November 7, will carry the voices of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths.

HITCHHIKER SOUGHT AS WARD ASSAILANT

Former Semi-Professional Wrestler Remains in Critical Condition.

William Ward, 26, former semi-professional wrestler, remained in a critical condition last night at Marietta hospital as authorities sought his assailant. Wounded in the abdomen with a bullet from a 32-caliber pearl-handled revolver, Ward told Cobb county Patrolman E. C. Ward, a cousin, that he had been shot by a man he had "picked up" in Atlanta.

The man was described as weighing about 150 pounds, with black hair and blue eyes, and wearing a dark business suit.

Patrolman Ward, who earlier in the day donated blood for transfusion to his cousin said Ward's explanation was acceptable. Ward said he had left Marietta about 5:30 o'clock Wednesday night for Atlanta, to collect a debt. The man he wanted to see was not at home, however, and he started home.

He said he offered the hitchhiker a lift on Northside drive. They were returning to Marietta on a side road about two miles south of Smyrna, his customary route. Ward said, when his passenger reached into a door compartment, grabbed the pistol which authorities reported was the property of a friend, and ordered him from the car.

Ward stopped the vehicle. A scuffle ensued, and Ward was shot. The hitchhiker then fled. Ward was shot on a bridge over the N. C. & St. L. railroad. Although wounded, Ward drove to Smyrna, where the car struck a telephone pole.

DISEASE OF HORSES INFECTS HUMANS

Mosquitoes Are Blamed for Transmitting Encephalitis Form to Mankind.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A highly fatal brain disease transmitted from horses to human beings, probably by mosquitoes, has been discovered.

It is an entirely new form of encephalitis, or inflammation of the brain, caused by a filterable virus which disintegrates the tissues. Dr. Roy F. Peenster, of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health in Boston, told the American Public Health Association's convention here today.

BUYERS' INTEREST IN AUTOS IS NOTED

Sloan Reports Earnings of General Motors for Third Quarter.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Reflections from all parts of the United States indicate a consumer interest in automobiles considerably over that of a year ago, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors Corporation, said today in releasing the company's third quarter report.

He qualified this, however, by saying the corporation is passing through what might be called a "blind spot."

Net earnings for the company in the third quarter amounted to $5,367,688 against $4,412,734 for the corresponding period of 1937. After deducting preferred dividends, there remained $3,073,133 available for common stock, or 7 cents a share, against $42,118,179 or 99 cents a share for the corresponding quarter of 1937.

Friend of Soldier Dies

DENNIS N. VLASS.

Soldiers' Host Near Fort Mac At 'Last Post'

There was sorrow among enlisted men at Fort McPherson last night.

"Dennis' Place," opposite the reservation at 1562 Murphy avenue, S. D., scene of cheery exchanges for 19 years between uniformed men and its host, was dark and silent. Dennis N. Vlass—himself a World War veteran—was dead.

When he was discharged from the 122d infantry in 1919, Vlass, a naturalized American, found congenial the military atmosphere in which he had lived, and opened his modest restaurant and soda fountain.

It proved a popular meeting place, and "See you at Dennis's" became a by-word among the soldiers.

Vlass was stricken with bronchial pneumonia 12 days ago.

Death came at a private hospital. He lived at 452 Cooper street, S. W., and was a well-known member of the Greek community in this city. He was a member of Ahepa, Greek civic organization, and a trustee of the Greek Orthodox church.

He was born at Ithaca, Greece, and came to Atlanta in 1910. He enlisted in 1917, the same year he became an American citizen. After the war, he returned to Greece, married and came back to Atlanta with his bride.

He had lived here since that time, and was a member of Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion. He was 49 years old.

Surviving are his wife, Zaharonea Vlass; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Vlass, of Ithaca, and two brothers, Jim and Jerry Vlass, both of Atlanta.

Funeral plans will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

FIREMEN RESCUE FIRE-TRAPPED MAN

Gate City Auction Company
Badly Damaged by Two-Alarm Blaze.

An employee trapped on the second floor of the Gate City Auction Company, furniture establishment at 157 Whitehall street, S. W., was rescued by firemen yesterday as flames damaged the roof and interior of the two-story structure to the extent of $5,000. Two alarms were sounded before the blaze was brought under control.

The employee, Foster Deal, 26, of 538 Cooper street, was at work in a repair shop in the front part of the building, with R. H. Bearden, of 577 English avenue, and Fred Wisener, 25, of 733 Two street. He clung to a window ledge, unable to jump because of a recent operation.

Fire spread rapidly and dense smoke poured from the building, which adjoins the Carroll Furniture Company on one side, and the Hutchins Furniture Company on the other. The neighboring stores were damaged by smoke and water. Miss Flora Cohn, of 1188 Lanier boulevard, bookkeeper, and J. W. Head, repairman, were also in the store when fire broke out.

Mother Gets License, Says Daughter Is 15.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 28.—(AP) A Courier-Journal dispatch tonight from Prestonsburg in the mountain region of eastern Kentucky, reported the marriage of a 10-year-old girl to a 34-year-old widower.

The dispatch said Rosie Columbus and Fleming Tackett were wed Monday by the Rev. W. G. Ratliff, employed as a blacksmith in a coal mine about 500 yards from the Columbus cabin. The license was obtained, the dispatch said, by the girl's mother, Mrs. Grace Columbus, at the Prestonsburg courthouse last week. The mother reported the girl's age as 15.

The dispatch added that a check up of the records in the Health department showed the girl was born at Paintsville, in an adjoining county February 12, 1928.

Second trial of William T. Moyers, charged with the armed robbery of Thomas K. Glenn and Ernest Woodruff, bankers, is expected to reach the jury tomorrow. The prosecution alleges Moyers

Moyers was convicted once and sentenced to serve from five to ten years, but won a new trial. An order to hold Moyers for the United States marshal has been was bare tonight. The city's 34,000 pupils and 1,300 school employees faced an indefinite vacation, starting tomorrow night. Emerson Landis, superintendent, expressed hope that the seven high schools, five junior high schools, 44 elementary schools and 17 kindergartens, might reopen December 3.

This, however, was contingent upon receipt of the city's usual quarterly share of $340,000 in state money. Even this would permit operation only until January 1, Landis said.

Jackets Take Final Workout Here Then Leave for Nashville

GEORGIA 2D TEAM BEATS 'FLORIDA'; REGULARS REST

More Light Work Planned Today for Whole Squad.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 27.—Joel Hunt, Georgia's head football mentor, pulled a surprise this afternoon as he staged a "Georgia-Florida" game all of his own as a preliminary to next Saturday's annual clash in Jacksonville, Fla.

While the first-stringers and injured men watched, the Bulldog reserves downed a "Florida" team, composed of Howell Hollis' freshman squad, 22-0, in a regulation game.

30-YARD PASS. Alex McCaskill, reserve end, and Rupert Blount, tailback, clicked on a 30-yard pass combination early in the first quarter to give the varsity reserves a 7-0 lead as Jack Clifton, rookie wingback, kicked the extra point.

The stubborn Bulldogs, however, fought back, and although unable to score themselves, they held the varsity to a touchdown in both the second and third quarters and a field goal in the final period. The second quarter touchdown came when C. D. Copeland eluded a drive by going over from the three-yard line.

Oliver Hunnicutt, who worked at both tailback and spinner back in today's scrimmage, scored the third and final touchdown early in the second half on a spectacular 45-yard sprint, while John Stegeman, rookie end, finished the afternoon's scoring with a 25-yard field goal in the final period.

Varsity Team. The starting varsity team lined up with McCaskill and Skipworth at ends, Pinckney and McKinney at tackles, Wilfong and Kersey at guards, Rutledge at center, Brown at blocking back, Blount at tailback, Clifton at wingback, and Hunnicutt at spinner back.

Opening for the freshmen were Keltner and Burt at ends, Langdale and Williams at tackles, Richards and Brown at guards, Wilkes at center, and Wingate, Kinsey, Christian and Gentry in the backfield.

Coach Hunt has more light work planned for the first-stringers Friday and it is unlikely that even the reserves will scrimmage.

Kelley and McDonald Winners in Bogey

Half of one of East Lake's familiar foursomes figured in first place Thursday afternoon in the regular midweek blind bogey. The winning score was 77.

Dr. H. P. McDonald and Dr. L. H. Kelley, were the winning half of a foursome consisting of John Blick and Dr. H. W. Ridley, in Thursday's play. L. D. Thompson also shared in first place.

Second place was well taken care of when F. O. Sallee, J. C. Kyle, T. R. Garlington, George Suggs, Paul Burt, W. P. Branch, J. J. McConnehey, J. Soulie, Huston White, A. C. Bromberg, R. E. Richards and W. A. Rhodes, finished one stroke away from the winners.

Parker Hall Looms All-S.E.C. Contender

Gatto, Cafego, Brunner Also Stand Out at This Date; Several Jackets Listed.

By KENNETH GREGORY.
The prevailing opinion of observers today was that when the all-star lineups are passed around to individual football players of the Southeastern conference at the season's end, Parker (Bullet) Hall, University of Mississippi halfback, will not be overlooked.

Another flood of reports on candidates for all-star honors has arrived from conference scouts, and, along with a glowing tribute to the performances of Hall in five games played, came an excellent commendation for Ken Kavanaugh, Louisiana State's towering end.

These two gridders joined with Louisiana State's Eddie Gatto, a husky tackle, and those scintillating halfbacks, George (Bad News) Cafego, of Tennessee, and Warren (Bronco) Brunner, of Tulane, as the standout performers of the 1938 campaign at this date.

TRIPLE-THREAT. Hall, a fine triple-threat performer weighing 195 pounds, has been the main cog in the early

Mehre's Ole Miss Eleven Stops Here

Coach Harry Mehre, of the University of Mississippi, said here yesterday his football team would have to "play its best game," if it defeated George Washington University in Washington, D. C., tonight.

"If we're not on our toes, we'll likely take a licking," he added.

A squad of 31 Mississippi players stopped over here yesterday en route to Washington and engaged in a snappy signal and passing drill on the Georgia Tech football field.

Asked what he thought "of the game against George Washington," Coach Mehre wisecracked: "Well, he used to be pretty good, but I'm hoping he's too old now. He ought to be anyhow."

Mehre reported the Ole Miss squad, which upset Louisiana State University in a season's opener, was in good condition with the exception of George Kinard, regular sophomore guard, who has a bad knee. He possibly may be used but won't start the game.

Mississippi's starting lineup probably will be Ward and Blackwell, ends; Hart and Dossett, tackles; Robertson and Lyles, guards; Autry, center; Bradley, quarterback; Hall and Whittington, halfbacks, and Tillman, fullback.

Assistant Coaches Weems Baskin and Frank Johnson accompanied the team.

his ace backfield a little of the old pep talk. With the Mississippi team are two other ex-Georgia coaches, Weems Baskin and Frank Johnson. Shown above, left to right, are Baskin, Whittington, left half; Tillman, fullback; Mehre, Bradley, quarterback, and the great Parker Hall, left half.

Several printed itineraries of the Ole Miss squad were handed out at a luncheon Harry Mehre gave for friends and sports writers here yesterday.

Buster Kilpatrick was scanning one and suddenly asked, "What's Hall doing in an upper berth?"

Mehre blushed. "Don't tell me that," he responded. "If there were any question of where Hall would sleep you'd find a situation like this: In drawing room A—Mehre and Hall."

Mehre believes Hall is the finest back in the conference. And naturally if point-scoring ability means anything—it usually does in football, by the way—Hall is tops. He is the leading conference scorer.

We had a chance to see him drill lightly yesterday. Hall is a well-constructed young man of 195 pounds. He stands a bit over six feet.

He can run, pass and kick. In fact, he looks like a great passer. Scouts and opponents say he is. He runs and jumps and rifles the ball with great accuracy.

A traveling newspaperman had this to say about the Ole Miss squad:

"I liked Ed Walker very much. He was a fine fellow. But there is such a difference in the Ole Miss squad now. The boys seem free from restraint. Harry Mehre has done a wonderful job with them. They'd fight a buzzsaw for him."

This same fellow said that Hall didn't look very good in practice. "He is strictly a matinee performer. He's at his best under pressure."

But Hall didn't look unimpressive in practice. He kicked that ball for good distance and threw those passes like a baseball. He displayed a pair of agile hips carrying the ball.

HARRY IS HOARSE. They used to call him Harry (Horse) Mehre at Notre Dame because his last name is pronounced like the female of the species.

And Harry was hoarse yesterday. He had a heavy cold and was barely able to talk above a whisper. He was accused of having lost his voice rooting for the Rebels, but he denied it.

"It must be the dryness everywhere. We need rain. But," he added hastily, "not before Sunday."

Vol Coach Predicts Louisiana State Win

Neyland Says Tigers Have Advantage in Experience, Weight, and Reserves.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Coach Bob Neyland sold his Tennessee football team short today, declaring he didn't see any possible chance for the Vols to beat Louisiana State Saturday.

"They have the advantage on us in experience, weight and reserves," Neyland opined. "In fact, they have everything needed for a great team. For a team averaging over 200 pounds to the man, those Tigers are extremely fast."

More Neyland "gloom" was to the effect Tennessee was overrated by the "experts" after its 13-0 upset victory over Alabama.

2-1 ON VOLS. It was typical comment for the Tennessee tutor, but few supporters of the Volunteers were inclined to string along with him. On the contrary, the butcher, baker and candle-stick maker in this football-made town bet their social security fund at about 2 to 1 on Tennessee.

They pointed out Tennessee's forward has been dented for only one touchdown in five games while the Vols were piling up 110 points. Alabama and Auburn couldn't do it and how, they reasoned, can L. S. U.?

NOT ONE-MAN TEAM. They refuse to accept the talk that Tennessee is a one-man team—namely Halfback George Cafego. Quickly, they point out that the Vols' game-winning touchdown

Tech Prepares to Meet Commodore Tricks With Tricks

Georgia Tech players donned light togery yesterday and went ahead at full speed in their preparations for the Vanderbilt game Saturday at Nashville.

With all the rough work over, the Jackets concentrated on plays and defensive drill in skeletonized form.

It takes a lot of intensive preparation to get ready to guard against a Commodore attack, since so many trick plays are brought into use.

Vanderbilt passes a lot and uses numerous reverse plays. The Commodores have many fake pass plays which end up in running plays.

The Jackets are not preparing to play defensive football, however. They are not going to rely mainly on the long-distance kicking of Hawk Cavette, either.

The Jackets have some plays which they figure will work. They

Maroons, Arkansas To Play in Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 27.—(AP) Chairman Joe Brennan, of the Memphis park commission, announced today the University of Arkansas and Mississippi State football teams would play a game here in 1939.

Brennan said Coach Fred Thomson, of the Razorbacks, and Athletic Director Dooley Noble, of Mississippi State confirmed by telephone arrangements to play the game either September 30 or December 9.

The North Fulton "B" team defeated the Marist "B" eleven yesterday by an 18-7 score. North Fulton tallied one touchdown in each of the first three quarters. Marist scored late in the last quarter on a long run, and kicked the extra point.

THE SPORTLIGHT

By GRANTLAND RICE.

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

THIS TIME IT'S TRUE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—When Henry Armstrong was matched with Barney Ross, many fight fans were impressed only with the meeting of a lightweight—who still held the featherweight title—and a welterweight and pondered the old question:

"Can a good little man beat a good big man?"

Actually, of course, no such question was involved in that match. Armstrong is a welterweight—almost a middleweight—from the waist up. Ross never was a real welterweight but always came in anywhere from five to six pounds under the welterweight limit. When they climbed into the ring, Armstrong looked as heavy as Ross, or heavier. And there hadn't been six pounds between them on the scale that day. But now Armstrong is going to fight Ceterino Garcia—and this really is a match where a good little man is meeting a good big man. Armstrong still is a lightweight, still is at his best at 134 pounds. Garcia, unlike Ross, is a full-grown welterweight. He may not have any trouble making 147 pounds. But he would have trouble making less. It would be foolhardy to attempt to build Henry up for the fight with the Filipino and Eddie Mead, his manager, knows it. Weight put on that way only slows a fighter down and adds nothing to either his strength or his punching power. So Henry will be spotting Garcia 13 pounds at the opening bell—and it is a question whether anybody can spot him that much and get away with it.

He Looked So Big.

The difference in size and weight is striking. Armstrong, as I have said, is big from the waist up. Garcia is big over all. He is several inches taller than Armstrong, broader through the shoulders, thicker in the limbs. The night that Armstrong took the lightweight championship from Lou Ambers, Garcia was one of the fighters introduced from the ring and any one looking first at the two boys sitting in their corners and then at the sleek, grinning Garcia standing beside the announcer might find it difficult to believe that either one of those two little guys wanted to fight that big one.

This bout with Garcia will test to the limit—and maybe beyond it—the amazing endurance of the little negro. Henry has taken everything any opponent could throw at him and then gone on and overwhelmed him. He has taken them on 126 pounds to 142 or thereabouts—has let them make their own best weight and then has clawed them for 10 or 15 rounds and finally stopped them or wrested the decision from them. But none of them was as big as Garcia. None could hit as hard. And, save possibly for Ambers, none could take a punch as well. This is easily the toughest assignment yet mapped out for Henry.

Not Always Impressive.

Garcia has not always been an impressive fighter, although his record shows that he usually has been a very effective one. He has made some sensational fights and some dull ones. But it has been a long time since anybody licked him. There is nothing fancy about the Filipino. He is an old-fashioned, tough street brawler from Manila. He loves to fight, fight as often as he can, is not particular about the amount of weight he gives away and doesn't care anything about his foe's reputation.

He was just another Filipino fighting up and down the Pacific coast when he fought Ross the first time. The fight was supposed to be a soft touch for Ross but Garcia flattened him in the first round—and still insists they gave Barney a long count. Barney got up and went on to win—but not by much. Just a couple of months ago, Garcia conceded 10 or 12 pounds to Glen Lee, who had been one of the leading contenders for the middleweight title, and gave him a horrible beating. To Garcia, Armstrong is just the welterweight champion—and he has been after the welterweight champion for some time. He fought Ross three times and lost all three decisions.

-- BOWLING --

Two of Atlanta's leading bowlers, W. F. (Carmen) Long and Larry (Whitman) Long, left Atlanta for Richmond, Va., early this morning where they will compete in the Virginia-Carolina sweepstakes event for men. The top-ranking bowlers of the east will be rolling in this individual event, with the Atlanta City's two bowlers. Thursday evening, the Sinclair Refining Company League, J. Whitworth won a real scoring rampage and collected games of 87, 119 and 134, to lead the evening's play. The team won two games from the Dinosaurs, and the little pins for a terrific clip to pace the team to a 310 to hold the individual league lead. M. D. (Barney) Barnett, fast-ball bowler of the Bell System league, continued to pile up a high average with a fine 338 series to his credit that included games of 128, 101 and 110 as his Georgia Plant team won two from W. E. Distribution A. Hays, of the W. E. team, had the high single game of 132 for the evening's play in the Telephone league. Lowry Whitman had a fine 337 series to pace the Junior Chamber of Commerce in three-game series and lead his team to a two-game victory over Bill Buge, who was chairman of the bowling committee of this league last year, had a fine game of 125 to win high single game honors in the loop. Lambert's 330 and Garner's high game of 121 were outstanding in the individual play for the Federal league. In the

PETRELS TO USE TRICKY OFFENSE AGAINST BEARS

Oglethorpe Cooks Up New Plays for Mercer; Manassa Out.

Oglethorpe's Petrels, not so stormy as in past years but capable of an occasional uprising, drilled long yesterday on a new set of plays Coach John Patrick designed for the game against Mercer at Macon Saturday. The workout was light, merely a good polishing up, for Patrick said his squad has looked "so good" this week in hard scrimmages he did not want to overwork the boys. The usual tapering off drill was set for today.

The Petrels depart for Macon this afternoon. George Manassa, ace Oglethorpe fullback, has not responded to treatment of an injured knee and is expected to play. Quarterback Fred Kelly has returned to the lineup and should get into action. Red Van Lingle also is out for the game.

Down in Macon yesterday afternoon, Coach Luke Russell sent his varsity against freshman team employing Oglethorpe's plays. Fullback John Mattox was the casualty of yesterday's long and hard scrimmage. He received a cut lip in making a tackle, but will play.

There was doubt Grady Rainey, captain and guard who hurt his foot in the Tulane game, would be able to play. He has not practiced this week.

ROSS TO OPPOSE LONDOS TONIGHT

Burly Jack Ross, the crowd-baiting Greek, will risk both his scalp and his southern light heavyweight championship belt at Warren Arena tonight where he opposes the very agile and clever Young Londos in the top attraction of what shapes up as a first-rank wrestling card.

Ross, a strong advocate of shady tactics and a consistent winner in Atlanta over the years, has not yet appeared at Warren Arena. He faces a stiff assignment tonight because Young Londos not only is scientific, but he has shown a knack of taking care of these tough guys which indicates Ross will have an uncomfortable evening.

Sammy Miller, veteran Syrian who never bows his audience, meets Jack Layden, Denver, Colo., flash, in the semi-final. The opening event brings together Jim Stecker, newcomer at Warren Arena, and Jack McAdams.

All bouts carry an hour time limit, and will be decided by the best two out of three falls.

The program opens at 8:30 with popular prices again featured.

Hill Sees How Far Ball Travels to First

Johnny Hill, ex-Cracker third baseman and leading Southern league hitter for 1938, saw the Marist-Boys' High game from the press box. Johnny's first visit to the elevated tier at Ponce de Leon park brought the remark that it is a "fur piece" from third to first base.

Johnny, who was recently sold to the Boston Bees, has one of the better throwing arms in baseball. He has been whipping pegs to Cracker first-basemen with the speed and accuracy of a machine for four years, but never realized just how far his throws had to travel.

Team play, H.O.C. State won three from Construction. H.O.C. regional dropped three to Federal Power. Construction won three from Finance and Office Management won two from Procurement.

Fields, top scorer of the league for single and three-game scores last week, was consistently high this week with a big game of 208.

E. L. Phillips, one of the two Atlanta bowlers to have rolled a perfect ten-pin game score of 300, won high single game honors with a 229 and three-game honors with a 616 in the City Ten Pin Thursday evening.

Hall's game of 138 and series of 332 paced the bowling in the Book & Gregg Hardware Company's league as the race for leadership became more pronounced yesterday.

ALL IN THE GAME

The Ole Miss squad, which uniformly is a fine-looking squad of Mississippi boys, departed last night for Washington to play George Washington Friday night. A large crowd of well-wishers was at Grant Field to greet Harry and congratulate him on the fine showing he has made this season. Weems Baskin and Frank Johnson, assistants, also were greeted warmly.

Mehre said that, next to Hall, he'd take Bradley as an outstanding back. "He is a nifty quarterback. But Hall is a climax runner. He hasumph-h."

GREAT COACHING JOB.

When the boys look around to find out who has done fine coaching jobs this year, the name of Harry Mehre will rank high on the list.

Fellow coaches freely admit he has done wonders in a new job. He had some material, naturally, but he had to adapt it to a new system and get it ready for a tough opener against L. S. U.

They're opening against the Bayou Bengals again next year because, as Harry says, "We like 'em tough at the start." Tulane also is being added to the Ole Miss schedule for next season. And Sewanee, too. Mehre always wanted to play Sewanee, 'tis said, and this is his first chance.

Several Athens people were present at Grant Field and Harry said, "It's a kick to see home folks again."

ALL-AMERICAN PRESS AGENT.

At least two Atlanta football writers will be willing, I am sure, to nominate Al Smith, of L. S. U., as the All-American press agent for 1938.

Al's copy has nothing to do with it, although he sends out sparkling and informative articles daily concerning the doings of the Old Lou squad.

Two Atlanta football writers decided in midweek to make the jaunt to Knoxville for the Tennessee-L. S. U. game. So they sat down casually and wired for room reservations.

The information they received from the Knoxville hoteliers was shocking. It seemed that not only were the hotels filled, but also boarding houses, tourist camps, Y. M. C. A.'s, Y. M. H. A.'s and even the dime-a-night places.

A fellow must sleep, or at least have a place to change a shirt. The situation was most disquieting.

So, as a last resort, a wire was dispatched to Al Smith at Baton Rouge, La.

A prompt answer was received:

"Will take care of you either at Andrew Johnson hotel or on special Pullman car which will have all the comforts of home—well, almost all, anyway."

Now, if the game were being played in Baton Rouge, one might expect Smith to do something about a room if the town were overloaded. But the game is several hundred miles away in Tennessee, and that still doesn't stop Smith. He finds accommodations when no one else can.

That entitles him to honorary mention for All-American even if Smith doesn't make it. The Al Smith in question is the same who graduated from Georgia and later had a hitch with the Associated Press in Atlanta before taking over the publicity duties for L. S. U. He is doing a grand job. Good old Al.

CANDID CAMERA CRAZE.

Fred Russell, sports editor of The Nashville Banner, comes up with a nifty in his column, Sideline Sidelights.

Russell says: "Probably the most exasperated coach of the season is the one who walked down near the end of the bench last Saturday to send in a substitute and found him, head and all, completely covered by a grid blanket."

"The sub sitting next to him 'saved' the situation by this remark:

"You'll have to wait a minute, coach; he's developing some pictures."

"The body was shipped home for a simple funeral."

CAPTAINS AND TECHS DEPART.

Warned that Vanderbilt does everything but swallow the football, the Georgia Tech squad departed last night for Nashville.

The Vandy game is, in effect, the key game of the Jacket season. A victory will give the boys a real shot at the conference title.

It appears to be the toughest game they have yet played because of the deceptiveness of the Vanderbilt attack.

Even the speed of the Auburn backs fades into the background when the versatility of the Commodore offensive is considered. Vandy also has fleet backs.

True, the Commodore offense has never functioned this season according to the manner in which it is deemed capable. But it may emulate the Mad Monk of Siberia any day and burst screaming from its cell.

There is no way to figure the game except as a toss-up. The Jackets must be alert to tricks every minute of the game that Vandy has the ball.

This and the Tennessee-L. S. U. game promise to be real thrillers.

JACKETS LEAVE FOR VANDY TILT

have not yet shown anything resembling an aerial circus or a smashing ground attack, but they have some weapons calculated to produce yardage.

BEARD, WOOD OUT.

So yesterday they went through all the motions before boarding the Tech special for Nashville. Backs Howard Ector, Neal Cavette, Billy Gibson, Bobby Beers, Juno Page, Grover Wilkins, Earl Wheby, Joe Bartlett, Jack Hitt, Roy Gore, Buck Shaw and Buck Murphy.

Loss of Wood, particularly, hurts the Jacket reserve strength in the line. Return of Glenn Cushing will offset this loss in part.

A cheering feature was the return of Allen Wilcox, alternate captain. Out since the Notre Dame game, Wilcox is in good shape again.

Cowboy Shaw, Tech's drop-kicking Texan, may be used some at blocking back and also in the passing end of the attack. He might come in handy if there's a chance for a field goal.

TWO EXCEPTIONS.

With a couple of exceptions, the Jackets are in fine shape physically, and their spirits seemed buoyed by a victory over Auburn. The Tech-Vandy game figures to be close. The Commodores have a flashy attack. The Jackets may match some of their tricks. The game promises to be highly colorful.

A final workout will be held today on the field at Vanderbilt. Players making the trip are: Ends: George Smith, Bob Ison, Tom Allen, Bob Anderson, Gay Thrash and Paul Sprayberry. Tackles: Glenn Cushing, Walter Rimmer, Eston Lackey, Paul By-

Boys' High Upset By Cadets, 2 to 0

Savol Breaks Through To Pin Green Back of Purple Line in Fourth Quarter.

By ROY WHITE.

Marist College, beaten and cuffed around by both G. I. A. A. and N. G. I. C. teams, rose to heights and defeated Boys' High, 2 to 0, Thursday night in one of the greatest upsets in the history of Atlanta's prep football.

Given only the slimmest chance to hold Boys' High to a two or three-touchdown margin, and not the slightest chance of victory, Marist played Boys' High off its feet from beginning to end.

Rube Davol, left end for Marist, was the hero of the victory. After playing his position without a flaw for the past two seasons, Rube broke through the whole Boys' High team and tackled Alternate Captain Dan Greer behind the goal line for the safety and the upsetting two points.

RYCKELEY AND DAVOL.

Ed Ryckele, a tackle alongside of Davol, also shared the hero's spotlight. The two were in practically every play, and turned back every play which came within their reach.

Not only that, but on long punts, both were down on the Boys' High runner before he could get started.

Late in the fourth quarter Marist received a Boys' High punt in midfield. McDonald and Holder gained a first down. A pass, McDonald to Davol, netted another first down, and the ball was on Boys' High's 14-yard line. A line play gained 5 yards and it was third down and 5 to go.

Marist gambled with a short flat pass, but Frank Boykin, one of Boys' High's injured players, in desperation grabbed the pass. An alert Marist backfield stopped Boykin on the 8-yard line. A short flat pass, Sheldon to Smith, netted five yards. Dan Greer faded back to pass, was rushed, and Davol tackled him behind the goal line for a safety and the greatest upset of the year.

ONLY THREE FIRST DOWNS.

Marist gained only three first downs in the entire game. Two of those came in the fourth quarter together, but that intercepted pass broke up the drive. Boys' High stopped them on all but three plays of any consequence, gained eight first downs but could never put even two together in succession.

Conceded the victory by at least a two-touchdown margin, Boys' High opened the game with a 30-yard run by Barfield. It was a smart play, just inside tackle. A 15-yard Boys' High penalty cut the yardage down on the next play and the Purples had to kick out.

A couple of end-around plays with McKinney carrying the ball some 20 yards, and a lateral, Barfield to Greer for 38 yards, were outstanding gains for Boys' High, and the only offensive threats of the game.

McDonald's punting also was outstanding for Marist and was another of the deciding factors in the victory. Late in the second quarter one of McDonald's punts was headed for out of bounds but was grounded by Davol on the one-foot line. Three other Marist punts went out of bounds or were grounded deep in Boys' High territory.

Late in the third quarter, Boys' High after gaining four first downs in the period, had the ball deep in Marist's territory, but could not gain another down and lost the ball.

DEFENSIVE GAME.

Marist's entire team played great football, but the defensive play of Davol, Ryckele and Wasser stood out above the others. Sacred Heart, companion girls school with Marist, furnished the band and cheer leaders for the victorious Cadets last night.

MARIST (2)		BOYS' HIGH (0)

HALL LOOMS ALL-CONFERENCE

drive of the Mississippi Rebels, defeated only by the Vanderbilt Commodores by a last-minute touchdown pass. Kavanaugh, the report says, was chiefly responsible for Louisiana State's triumph over Vanderbilt.

The Mississippi halfback, a senior, has averaged 6.3 yards from scrimmage on 51 attempts against all opposition. He has completed 22 of 43 passes for 337 yards and averaged 41.1 yards on 19 punts. He leads the conference's individual scorers with seven touchdowns and one extra point.

"Kavanaugh played better against Vanderbilt than Gaynell Tinsley ever did," an observer at Baton Rouge reported. Tinsley was All-American for two years in a row. "Kavanaugh was all over the field on defense and was mostly responsible for breaking up Vanderbilt's razzle-dazzle. He intercepted a Vanderbilt pass that put L. S. U. in position for its winning touchdown drive."

A SPARKPLUG.

Although he did not play half of the game, Brunner was again a sparkplug in Tulane's one-sided victory over Mercer. "This Brunner has it," wrote an observer, "is an All-American player if there's been one in the south in the last six or eight years."

Gatto and Ray Miller, the Tulane captain, remain the leading tackle candidates on the basis of reports received. Both of these players turned in their usual flawless games last week end. Bo Russell, of Auburn, was a power in the Plainsmen line against Georgia Tech.

Other linemen winning praise for duty in last week's games included:

Ends—Bowden Wyatt of Tennessee; Oscar Burford and Max Harrison of Auburn; George Smith and Bob Ison of Georgia Tech; Marvin Franklin of Vanderbilt; Ralph Wenzel, of Tulane; Guards—Junior Anderson and J. L. Brooks, of Georgia Tech.

Centers—Sherman Hinkshin, of Kentucky, and Jack Chivington, of Georgia Tech.

The backs drew another round of praise, with Sophomores Neil Cavette, of Georgia Tech, for his great punting against Auburn, and Ashford Sims, of Louisiana State, for his fine passing, catching the eyes. Cavette has established himself as possibly the best punter the south has this year. Sims gave a great exhibition of passing against Vanderbilt, aiding to set up the touchdown run made by Truman (Jake) Staples from the 15-yard line. Other backs on the list of nominations over the week-end included: Lunsford Hollins, of Vanderbilt; Guy (Cotton) Miller, of Louisiana State; Harry Hays and Fred Casibary, of Tulane; Carrell Booth, of Louisiana State; Howard Ector and Billy Gibson, of Georgia Tech; Spee Kelly and Dick McGowan, of Auburn; Jim Fordham, of Georgia.

GAINESVILLE FOE OF DECATUR HIGH AT HOME-COMING

Russell Wildcats Play LaGrange; North Fulton Meets Griffin.

By ROY WHITE.

G. M. A. and Commercial High will headline tonight's four-game prep schedule. They will battle at 8 o'clock at Ponce de Leon park for second place and a possible chance for the city championship. Decatur High will observe home-coming at 7:30 o'clock in a game with Gainesville High, a bitter enemy, on the Decatur field.

Russell plays LaGrange High at 7:30 o'clock under the lights at East Point in another game which may go a long way towards deciding the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference championship.

North Fulton, the most improved prep team in the city, plays Griffin High, co-champion of the N. G. I. C. last year, at 7:30 o'clock on the Buckhead field.

Down in the weaker division of the city prep race for the past several years G. M. A. has come up with its best team in recent years and already has thrown a monkey wrench in the pot with an upset 12-to-6 victory over Tech High last Friday night. It was the first defeat for the champion Smithies since late in the 1936 season.

ONLY SET-BACK.

Boys' High beat G. M. A. 13 to 7 early in the season for the only set-back for the Cadets this season. Two one-sided victories over Russell and LaFayette also are recorded on the G. M. A. schedule.

Commercial High with a veteran line and capable group of reserves in the backfield lost its opening game to Boys' High, 14-0, upset the highly favored Lanier High team in Macon, and two weeks ago dropped a 7-6 decision to Tech High.

Lack of reserves have severely handicapped both G. M. A. and Commercial High this season in games with Tech High and Boys' High. Tonight the teams will meet on even terms and neither will have an alibi. The coaching on both teams has been thorough, particularly in the fundamentals.

Two former University of Georgia players, Jim Cavan and Joe Martin, will lead their proteges into the Decatur home-coming battle tonight. Cavan, former Decatur backfield star, will direct the destinies of Gainesville, while Martin and Alan Shi, another former Georgia star, will be in charge of Decatur's team.

RESERVATIONS.

All former Decatur players are asked to communicate with O. L. Amsler, principal, as early as possible today and get reservations. LaGrange is running Decatur and Commercial a close race for title honors in the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference and is favored to beat Russell tonight.

Russell on the other hand has a fine chance to upset the invaders and leave the Decatur-Commercial game on Thanksgiving Day, the deciding issue.

85 Railroad Cars To Carry L. S. U. Students, Fans to Game

Tiger Showmanship Will Rival Barnum's

Tennessee Trip Will Be Last the University Will Foot Bills; "Mike" Has Car—Alone.

By NORMAN WALKER.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 27.—(P)—Louisiana State University prepared tonight for a friendly invasion of Tennessee, a colorful football junket rivaling in showmanship everything the late Barnum contrived for the circus.

Exodus of this football-frenzied town began with the departure of a special train carrying the L. S. U. team to Knoxville for Saturday's game with the University of Tennessee.

Eighty-five railroad cars filled with students and fans, comprising six more special trains, were to follow the team tomorrow. The railroad company made arrangements for 5,000 persons but expected more.

BY AUTOMOBILE.

Several hundred other fans were traveling to Knoxville by automobile. Officials of a number of state departments at the capitol announced employees could take Friday and Saturday and next Monday off if they wished to go to the game.

L. S. U. planned a show to end all L. S. U. football shows, topping even the spectacular football excursions led by the late Huey Long during the time he dictated this state's politics and particularly championed the Tiger football team.

University officials indicated the Tennessee trip would be the last on which the school would foot the bill for the 2,400 uniformed cadets and 200-odd band members.

Trains will leave here at 15-minute intervals. On the first, in a special car, will be President James Monroe Smith, of the University, and Mrs. Richard Leche, wife of the Governor, and a party of friends. Governor Leche will meet the group at Knoxville on his way back from Washington.

SPECIAL COACH. Another special coach is reserved for Mike, the full-grown bengal tiger mascot of the football team. He'll have the car all to himself.

Colonel Roy A. Hill, commandant of cadets, said the L. S. U. retinue would stage a mile-long parade through Knoxville's principal streets Saturday morning. The official party will ride with special cadet honor guards in automobiles ahead of the gray-uniformed cadets, drum majors, blaring band, "Mike," cheerleaders, special coed cheering corps, student council members and others. In the four other occasions L. S. U. transported its cadets in automobiles to alien gridirons, the Bayou Bengals always came away with football victories.

L. S. U.'S FAST - STEPPING MILNER VOL'S WORRY

L. S. U.'s Tigers block Tennessee's path to a Southeastern conference title Saturday. The unbeaten Vols clash with the Bengals, who have lost only to Ole Miss, at Knoxville in the big game of the week, as far as S. E. C. fans are concerned. Cotton Milner, 190-pound senior wingback, is the chief point-gainer the Vols will have to stop. This speedy back also does the kicking, his field goal in the last 15 seconds of play having turned back Rice, 3 to 0. He added the extra point in last week's game when L. S. U. turned back the previously unbeaten Vandy eleven, 7-0.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 27.—(P)—Vanderbilt's Commodores were paced through a lengthy scrimmage today, getting their first look at Georgia Tech plays in preparation for Saturday's battle against the Yellow Jackets.

Fall Festival Shoot Gets Started Today

First of Three Days' Shooting Begins at 9:30 at Capitol Gun Club.

Three hundred rounds of ammunition will be fired today at the Capitol Gun Club in the first of three days in the annual fall festival trap and skeet shooting tournament. The shooting will begin at 9:30 o'clock.

The first event on the program will be the fall festival singles championship from the 16-yard mark. There will be 200 targets, divided into eight events of 25 targets each.

Prizes will be given for Class A, B and C winners. The fall festival doubles championship will be fired in the afternoon with 50 pairs of targets in two events.

The doubles shooters will be divided into Classes A and B, with prizes for the winners. Both the singles and doubles today will be fired from the regular trap sheds, the same as that of Saturday. A skeet preliminary will be fired Saturday afternoon.

The fall festival skeet championship will conclude the three-day program Sunday afternoon. The shoot has been sanctioned by both the national trap and skeet association and any record made this week will be officially sanctioned.

Prominent out-of-town shooters attending are Major R. C. Coffey, John Kries and Ike Andrews, from Tennessee; Ray Loring, manager of the American Trap-Shooting Association; J. R. Johnston and Fred Kahler, of Indiana; T. K. Lee and Jack Taylor, of Alabama; Dr. J. S. Lutz and Dr. W. E. Farris, of Kentucky, and W. L. Moore and Dr. J. R. Schuster, of Ohio.

Cefirino Garcia's fight with Henry Armstrong likely will be the toughest the little colored boy has ever had. . . . Garcia can hit like nobody's business (if he can get set).

Miss. State Entrains For New Orleans
STARKVILLE, Miss., Oct. 27.—(P)—Mississippi State's football squad of 34 men entrained late today for New Orleans and the Saturday battle against the Tulane Green Wave.

War Admiral Fastest---Kurtsinger --

Jockey Says Riddle's Horse Best in Last Ten Years.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27.—(P)—War Admiral, Jockey Charley Kurtsinger declared today, is the fastest piece of horse flesh to put huff to turf in the past 10 years, and that takes in Seabiscuit, his rival in their "Pimlico Spec" duel here Tuesday.

Kurtsinger, wiry little Kentuckian known as the "Flying Dutchman," is War Admiral's regular rider. He guided the son of Man O' War to victories in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness last year.

"War Admiral is the best horse to come to the races in the last decade," Kurtsinger said. "He never really has been extended in a race during the past two years. The Admiral is in a class by himself."

As soon as a horse threatens him, Kurtsinger said, the Admiral stretches out his long legs in a distance-eading stride and leaves plenty of daylight between him and his challenger.

That, the Dutchman declared, is just what will happen if George Woolf, Seabiscuit's jockey, presses C. S. Howard's big bay too close to the Admiral when they race a mile and three-sixteenths for $15,000 and supremacy of the American turf.

Furthermore, Kurtsinger added, if Seabiscuit doesn't show a lot of early speed, he will be left far behind. Getting his start at Empire City.

Charley has been riding professionally for 11 years. When he's not riding horses, he's talking, watching or reading them. A Blue Grass Kentuckian, he naturally loves horses like the governor admires colons.

A crowd of 7,500 is expected. The kickoff is set for 2 p. m., eastern standard time.

Coach Nicks will put the finishing touches on his squad this afternoon with a light signal drill and dummy practice. He was not satisfied with the showing his varsity made against the Florida plays and formation which the B team used against his first stringers Thursday afternoon.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. (AP)—The American Legion today announced its sponsorship of the Catholic University-Miami, Fla., football game November 11.

Officials said they hoped to make the game an annual affair.

You want to be especially sure you have a good topcoat, because in the necessarily light material of a topcoat, wear and the wrinkles of cheapness are likely to show much more quickly and obviously than in a heavier garment. Another factor to consider is that the characteristic lines of a topcoat, the fullness, nonchalance and casual air, are not going to stay in a coat that's made of a poor fabric, or that is poorly tailored. It'll be only a matter of a couple of wearings before it looks bedraggled.

BIG CROWD SEEN FOR NEGRO GAME

Advance ticket sales indicate that the largest crowd of white and colored fans ever will witness a colored game here will be in the stands at Ponce de Leon park Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock when Morris Brown College of Atlanta, and Florida A. & M. College, of Tallahassee, both undefeated this year, meet in their annual football game.

Unusual interest in the ticket sales for whites is noticeable because of the fact that both Georgia Tech and Oglethorpe are playing out of town and Georgia, with an off day, makes this outstanding colored game the only attraction in Atlanta this week end.

Several hundred fans from Tallahassee are making the trip here to yell for their undefeated team, Coach William J. Nicks, of Morris Brown, and William Bell, the latter a gridiron star at Ohio State, will be interviewed over station WAGA tonight at 10:30 o'clock.

Florida will arrive today around noon, according to telegrams reaching here from Coach Bell. He is bringing a squad of 32 men, team physician and two assistant coaches. Dean Bragg, considered the "grand old man of colored football," because of his lifetime interest in the game, will accompany the Rattlers here.

BUYERS WARNED OF WAGE PENALTY

'Hot Goods' Produced in Violation of Law Mean Trouble—Andrews.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. (AP)—Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour law administrator, hinted today that buyers might be in for trouble if they knowingly purchased "hot" goods.

By hot goods he meant those produced at standards lower than the law provides and circulated in interstate commerce.

At a press conference, a reporter asked him questions about "collusion" between buyers and sellers. Saying he did not want to work any hardships on persons who made honest mistakes, Andrews added:

"But where there is evidence of collusion, where a person buys with the full knowledge that the goods are manufactured contrary to law, certainly this section ought to be taken into account."

The following section prescribes a fine up to $10,000 or six months imprisonment.

MIAMI COMMISSION DEFIES HIGH COURT

Bench Orders Reinstatement, Board Has City Clerk Forcibly Ejected.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 27. (AP)—Frank J. Kelly, reinstated as city clerk yesterday by a state supreme court order, was suspended again today by Miami's embattled city commissioners, who had him forcibly ejected from the office.

The commission suspended Kelly on charges of malconduct and neglect of duty preferred by Walter O. Carlstrom and Z. O. Young.

Mayor Robert R. Williams, Commissioner John W. DuBose and Mrs. Anna M. Perry, the mayor's former secretary, who was appointed to the commission last Monday, voted for the suspension. Commissioners Ralph B. Ferguson and R. C. Gardner opposed.

Kelly was ousted originally last July, when he was ready to certify that petitions seeking a recall election aimed at Williams, DuBose and Ferguson bore sufficient qualified names.

The supreme court recently ordered him reinstated, but before the order became effective the commission majority declared the office vacant and named A. D. F. Bloodworth as clerk. This week the supreme court, at the petition of recall attorneys, ordered Kelly reinstated immediately.

Taft and Buckley ARGUE LABOR LAWS

Ohio Candidates Debate in Toledo, Stronghold of Unionism.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 27. (AP)—Senator Robert J. Buckley, and his Republican opponent, Robert A. Taft, carried into this stronghold of unionism tonight their series of campaign debates, arguing on the New Deal's contributions to the welfare of labor.

"Never until the administration of President Roosevelt," asserted Buckley, New Deal supporter, "was the right that labor has collected for all the years, to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, made the law of the land."

Taft denied that the New Deal alone was concerned with the welfare of labor, asserting the traditional position of Republicans had been to protect the American working man through the tariff and bars against excessive immigration.

FARM ACT BENEFITS LAUDED BY DUGGAN

Latest Law Has Not Been Given Fair Trial, He Declares.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 27. (AP)—Ivy W. Duggan, southern director of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, said today the latest federal farm program had not had a fair trial, but declared cotton farmers who co-operated this year fared better than those who did not.

Duggan, in one of a series of speeches he will make prior to the December 10 referendum on the 1939 quota plans, explained he was not trying to tell the cotton farmer he was well off, "but I am trying to tell you that you are better off with the program than without one."

Taking for example two hypothetical farms each having 100 cultivatable acres, Duggan said the man who planted all his land to cotton would have had a net loss equal to the difference between the market price and the cost of production, which he figured at 10.7 cents a pound.

The man who co-operated and planted only 60 acres in cotton, the AAA executive said, received in benefits and sale price about 14 cents.

In addition to this, Duggan said, the co-operator saved the heavy fertilizer bill on the 40 unplanted acres, had an opportunity to grow food and feed crops and to earn additional federal payments through soil-building practices.

Duggan is to speak at the Dawson peanut festival November 3, at Waycross November 4 and Swainsboro November 5.

DeKalb Judges Ask $50-Every-Friday

Going Californians a few dollars better, justices of the peace in DeKalb county yesterday called upon their state legislators to agitate for passage of a bill guaranteeing all justices of the peace in Georgia at least $50 every Friday, and $20 every Thursday for life after retirement.

The resolution, introduced in a spirit of fun at the annual meeting of the justices, also called for building of "streamlined," air-conditioned courtrooms, and abolition of the petition of certiorari.

Judge Augustus M. Roan, of the DeKalb division of municipal court, entertained the justices in his courtroom. John E. Verner, of Decatur, was re-elected president, while Harvey Armstrong was elected vice president and J. O. Mitchell was named secretary-treasurer.

Billboard advertising in restricted residential sections was struck a blow yesterday when Recorder John L. Cone supported contentions of the city planning commission, and fined two defendants against whom a test case was made. A. C. Callaway, owner of a West End restaurant and recreation resort, and the Western English Brewing Company, were the defendants. They had erected signs on Donnelly avenue. Cone suspended the fines with the stipulation that the signs be removed.

"He appears to be on the road to recovery," one said.

DALADIER DOOMS 'POPULAR FRONT'

He Offers Loyal Collaboration to Hitler; End of Red Pact Seen.

MARSEILLE, France, Oct. 27. (UP)—Premier Daladier, addressing the annual congress of his Radical-Socialist party, today outlawed the Communists from the government majority and moved closer to friendship with the dictators.

Daladier, sounding the death knell of the leftist Popular Front coalition that has governed France for more than three years, accused the Communists of sabotaging his efforts to strengthen France.

The Premier's repudiation of the Communists, who hold 76 seats in parliament, increased speculation that the government's shift to a settlement with the totalitarian powers might result in collapse of the Franco-Soviet military alliance.

Daladier, in his fiery speech against the Communists, held out a friendly hand to Germany.

French policy, he said, is based on collaboration with Great Britain, but there are no restrictions—either moral or political—against its extension to "loyal collaboration" with other nations.

MENUHIN SNUBS MUSICIAN'S GUILD

Starts 'Fight for Freedom' Despite Philharmonic Orchestra's Contract.

LOS GATOS, Cal., Oct. 27. (AP)—Yehudi Menuhin, 21-year-old violinist, started today what he described as a fight for his freedom as an artist by refusing to join the American Guild of Musical Artists.

In a letter to Mrs. Leiland Altherton Irish, executive vice president of the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, he flatly refused to join the guild as a prerequisite for his appearances as soloist with the Philharmonic November 3-4.

Menuhin explained that when his contract for the concerts was signed nearly a year ago nothing was said about A. G. M. A., and that he proposed to carry out the contract as drawn.

In a letter to Menuhin, October 25, Mrs. Irish had informed the violinist that the orchestra had signed a contract with A. G. M. A. requiring that "every artist appearing on our platform must be a member of that organization."

At Los Angeles, Mrs. Irish said the question of whether the orchestra would accept Menuhin would be waived to permit Menuhin to appear in for the guild, which is headed by Lawrence Tibbett, to determine.

"If he doesn't want to play, I'm sorry, but he either will or he won't," she said. "It is not a question of labor or of union. It is a matter of $70 against $3,000 we would have to pay him to play twice for about 30 minutes."

She commented it would cost Menuhin about $70 to $75 to join the guild.

Menuhin said it was not a question of money.

DIES COMMITTEE REFUSES DELAY

'Surprise' Testimony Largely Repetitious of the Previous Charges.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. (UP)—The Dies committee today flatly rejected demands from two New Deal members that it postpone further inquiry into un-American activities until after the November 8 election and hurled new defiance at the White House by renewing its investigation of the activities of Governor Frank Murphy during the 1937 automobile strikes in Michigan.

Chairman Martin Dies, Democrat, Texas, led three other members of his committee in riding roughshod over the proposal of Representatives Arthur D. Healey, Democrat, Massachusetts, and John J. Dempsey, Democrat, New Mexico, that the inquiry be recessed until after the November elections.

Immediately after disposing of the Healey-Dempsey plan, Dies called to the witness stand J. E. Creighton, Lansing (Mich.) newspaper reporter, who had been described as a "surprise witness."

His testimony developed to be largely repetitious of previous evidence concerning the "labor holiday" in the Michigan capital last year.

Joe Lewis Meets --- Jack Johnson

VIDALIA, Ga., Oct. 27.—Jack Johnson and Joe Lewis met on the Vidalia-Soperton road Tuesday night—not for the benefit of Madison Square Garden—and both came off the worse for the encounter.

Johnson is a Lyons resident, and Lewis lives in Emanuel county.

When their automobiles collided on a curve, Johnson received scratches and bruises. He was thrown clear of his car, and his glasses were knocked from his face and embedded in sand a dozen feet away, but not broken. Lewis was uninjured, but his car was damaged.

BRIDE OF FEW HOURS IS SHOT BY FATHER

Groom Also Wounded; Helena Farmer Held Pending Woman's Condition.

McRAE, Ga., Oct. 27. (AP)—Sheriff J. B. Walker blamed a family quarrel today for a shooting in which he said Eddie Carter, of McRae, and his 22-year-old bride of a few hours, Neslie Powell Carter, were wounded by the bride's father, Charlie Powell, 50-year-old farmer, at the Powell home in Helena last night.

The sheriff said he was holding Powell without charge pending outcome of his daughter's wounds. She was struck in the mouth by a single pistol bullet, and taken to a Macon hospital. Attendants there said she was doing nicely.

The sheriff said Carter received superficial back wounds.

Sheriff Walker said Powell claimed a pistol was discharged in a scuffle and Mrs. Carter was shot accidentally. He said Carter claimed Powell tried to kill him and his bride.

STREET CAR RIDER INJURED BY AUTO

Car Strikes Elderly Passenger as He Alights, Hurling Him 15 Feet.

Hurled 15 feet by an automobile after he alighted from a street car on Ponce de Leon avenue, near Parkway drive, a man identified as Ivy Thompson, apparently about 60, was admitted to Grady hospital in a serious condition at 10 o'clock last night.

Lon Sullivan, deputy commissioner of the Department of Public Safety, driving near the scene, declared traffic was heavy and that the elderly pedestrian "seemed bewildered" upon leaving the street car. Two motorists took the victim to the hospital.

Radio Patrolmen T. J. Sikes and J. W. Mashburn said they would list the accident as a hit-and-run case unless the driver of the car surrendered to police during the night. They said witnesses obtained the license number of the machine.

Mr. Thompson could not remember his home address, police said. Hospital attendants said he suffered a broken right leg and a possible skull fracture.

ALMA GLUCK DIES IN HER 55TH YEAR

Metropolitan Star Retired at Peak of Career; Was Wife of Zimbalist.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. (AP)—Alma Gluck, opera favorite of yesterday who retired at the height of a brilliant career to devote herself to her husband and children, died today after a long illness.

She was the wife of Eftem Zimbalist, the shy violinist whose tap on her arm on a Jersey-bound ferry one night started a friendship that resulted in their marriage several years later. They had two children, Maria Virginia (Mrs. Ogden Goetz) and Eftem Jr.

Millions who have never seen the interior of the Metropolitan Opera house knew and loved Alma Gluck's voice, which reached homes throughout the world on phonograph records. A million reproductions were made of a single recording of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."

Airport Lights Open Invitation To Weary Geese

WAUSAU, Wis., Oct. 27. (AP)—A "squadron" of fliers estimated at 1,000—all of them geese—look off from Wausau airport today after making it their overnight stopping place.

The geese, apparently exhausted and lost in lights, circled the city again and again last night before lights were turned on at airport and a safe landing effected.

The attendant, who turned on the lights as a joke, gaped as the birds taxied in for their landings and settled down for the night after some sociable—and no doubt grateful—honking.

CUSTOMS AGENTS RAID APARTMENT OF JUSTICE

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. (AP)—Raiding customs agents, moving rapidly and without comment, left the Park avenue apartment of State Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer tonight carrying four large valises.

City, County Employees Indorse Improvements Bonds

Executive boards of the Atlanta City Employees' Union, Local No. 4, and Fulton County Local No. 3 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees are shown above as they indorsed the $6,550,000 bond issue and called on members to vote for ratification in the election next Wednesday. Shown seated, left to right, are Miss Julia Elliott, Mrs. Mahle Terry, Edgar Gunn, Miss Sarah Cleveland and Albert Gossett. Back row, left to right, C. H. Keith, W. B. Walker, Cicero Kendrick, R. C. Wither, B. H. Wall and W. P. Gresham.

JERE WELLS BACKS PASSAGE OF BONDS

Declares Future of County
Irretrievably Tied to Development of Atlanta.

The future of every section of Fulton county is irretrievably tied to the development and prosperity of Atlanta, Jere A. Wells, superintendent of Fulton county schools, last night declared in urging every citizen of Fulton county to vote for county bonds and "lobby among your friends for passage of the city bond issue."

The Wells address was the high point of a meeting at the Hapeville city hall. It followed action by the mayor and council of Fairburn in sanctioning the $6,550,000 city-county bond issue as sentiment for approval of the issues crystallized in other sections of the county and Atlanta.

Mass Meeting at East Point.
A mass meeting of citizens at the new municipal building at East Point will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Mayor J. R. Parham announced, and Frank H. Neely, chairman of the joint city-county bond commission, will speak to members of the 30 Club of College Park at the same time.

Major Elbert Tuttle is slated to address the East Point meeting, which will follow a short session of the city council.

Mayor J. R. Cathey, of Hapeville, and two former mayors—Eugene King, who presided over the meeting, and Quincy Arnold—told the group they will support the bonds and assisted in mapping plans to get out every eligible voter next Wednesday.

Although citizens of Fairburn cannot vote on the $4,000,000 in securities submitted by Atlanta, they can cast their ballots for the $2,550,000 offered by Fulton county.

As Fairburn acted officially on the program, Mayor J. T. Upshaw of Alpharetta, came out for the bond issue and issued the following statement through the office of Galare Davis, in charge of bond campaign headquarters:

"My reasons for being for bonds are:

"First, because it is good business proposition in that you invest $2 and get approximately $6 in return.

"Second, because it will help to alleviate suffering humanity now and in the future.

"Third, because it is an opportunity which probably will never present itself again.

"Fourth, because it will give so much work for the unemployed.

"Fifth, because I am in favor of progress."

The county organizations thus joined scores of others in the county and city in supporting the program, designed to bring about expenditure of more than $15,000,000.

IT'S A CRIME TO NEGLECT A COUGH

When a Common Cough Can Be Relieved So Easily.

Thanks to the work of a great scientist, the dean of Pharmacy of a large midwestern university, there is obtainable at most drug stores, a combination of Genuine Beechwood Creosote, Menthol and five healing ingredients combined in a base of pure fig syrup, that gives almost instant relief to that hacking cough, due to a cold.

This formula is sold under the name of Mentho-Mulsion, and unless Mentho-Mulsion relieves your trouble, your money is promptly refunded upon request. It is not genuine Mentho-Mulsion unless the formula is printed on the carton.

Mentho-Mulsion is recommended, sold and guaranteed by leading druggists everywhere.—(adv.)

000,000 for city and county improvements.

Members of the Atlanta Association of Building Owners and Managers also added their voice to the chorus of approval which has been swelling since details of the program were first made known.

Petroleum retailers also plan to co-operate with the bond program, and Harold Boerlin, executive secretary of the group composed of 600 members, praised the program.

The first of a series of parades by schools in behalf of the school improvements included in the program will take place today when three "armies" comprising the legions of Joe Brown Junior High school invade West End sections of the city.

The executive board of Firemen's Local, No. 134, also yesterday was unanimously on record as supporting the bonds and urging the public to visit the polls.

Mrs. Vernon Brown, president of the Atlanta Junior Woman's Club, will speak on the bond issue and urge members to support it at a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock this afternoon at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium.

Speakers also will advocate passage at a meeting of the Business and Professional Woman's Club at 8 o'clock tonight.

ITALIAN FIRM BUYS OIL FROM MEXICO

'Several Million Dollars Worth' Taken, Government Announces.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Mexican government tonight announced it had contracted to sell "several million dollars' worth of oil to an Italian firm."

Contracts for oil sales have been signed with Azienda Generale Italiana Petroli di Rome, the government said.

Other agreements were negotiated with the government of Costa Rica, and with a Brazilian firm.

Since expropriation of the 17 American and British oil companies' properties, Mexico has encountered extreme difficulties in developing trade in oil with foreign countries because virtually all oil tankers are controlled by oil companies which refused to transport the output of the expropriated wells.

Concerning the asphalt sale to Costa Rica, the government declared: "We are especially interested in favoring our sister republics with prices that will break the heartless monopoly they have been suffering up to now."

REHEARING SOUGHT BY MADCAP MERRY
Wed to Two, She Wants
Only One.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Merry Fahney, by court ruling wife of both an Italian baron and a Russian count, moved today to relieve this marital embarrassment through another court action.

The red-haired patent medicine heiress petitioned the Illinois appellate court for a rehearing on the case which nullified her divorce from Arturo Berlingieri of Italy, her third husband, and made her fourth marriage, to Count Oleg Cassini, an act of bigamy.

Attorney Frank Cantwell said that if the petition is denied he will ask permission to appeal to the state supreme court.

home for the aged and a second degree murder charge against another inmate.

BURBANK RECORDS ARE LOST IN FIRE

Experiments Data, Considered Priceless, Destroyed.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Records of experiments conducted by the late Luther Burbank, "plant wizard," were destroyed tonight in a fire which razed a two-story barn, damaged the famous Burbank "glass house" and menaced for a time the Burbank dwelling.

The flames, which neighbors said were preceded by an explosion, destroyed priceless papers left by Burbank and burned valuable paintings.
